ald Robertson, left. She was also the recipient of the accounting award by teacher Nora Farina. At right, Jean Scott receives top academic plaque from district school superintendent, F. J. Orme, left. The awards ceremonies highlighted a two-hour graduation program, the last in the school's 12-year history. Since its opening in 1960, the school has graduated slightly under 600 students. The school is discontinuing Grades 11 and 12 levels. Besides school board representative Chief Derriksan, platform guests included school board chairman T. R. Carter, superintendent Orme, school vice-principal L. S. Green and Dr. Knox Chapter IOE education convener Mrs. Fred Chamberlain. See story page 3. (Courier Photos)

Nuclear Warning Given UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Medium-sized global powers will seek to increase their international clout through nuclear armament if the importance of atomic weaponry is not de-emphasized, Armando Frazao, Brazilian ambassador to the United Nations, said Friday.

Frazao told the annual conference of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs that intermediate powers now are concentrating on developing "the prerequisites of national power."

But once certain social, economic and cultural objectives are realized, these countries will try to gain international power through nuclear arms "if we keep nourishing the concept of an international system where considerations of naked force are paramount."

The ambassador told 150 delegates meeting for the first time outside Canada that the decision to forgo nuclear arms is "a first political option made by these intermediate states which are either members of military alliances or are grouped under common ideological allegiances."

Canada, and other medium-sized countries, have "the responsibility, if not necessarily the means, to constantly prod the major antagonists to remind them that the key to lasting peace and security does not lie in the politics of stalemate."

WANT VOICES HEARD

The ambassador said both Canada and Brazil "are giving strong evidence, through the growth of their national economies and through a more direct involvement in international affairs, that they want their voices to be heard and their interests to be taken into account in the formulation of solutions for the major international problems."

Frazao said he is pessimistic about peaceful co-existence among the major world powers, despite the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks and President Nixon's recent Moscow visit.

Flanders Field Poet Remembered

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and Pope Paul have sent telegrams here commemorating the 100th anniversary Sunday of the birth of Col. John McRae.

Col. McRae, a native of Guelph, wrote the poem "In Flanders Fields" during the First World War. He is buried in Flanders.

NEWS IN A MINUTE

Fire Destroys Prince Rupert Docks

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — A major fire today destroyed the Canadian National docks in this north coastal city along with a 50-year-old building that contained a cannery and offices.

Hanoi Reports On U.S. Bomb Damage

HONG KONG (AP) — U.S. bombs have destroyed or seriously damaged 32 main sections of dikes, 29 dams, and many economic installations in 30 North Vietnamese districts, towns and cities, Hanoi's foreign ministry reported today.

W. Germany Charges 10 Hijackers

WEIDEN (AP) — West German authorities filed charges of air piracy Friday night against 10 Czechoslovaks who took over a Czech airliner to escape to the West, Czechoslovakia and the United States Air Line Pilots Association demanded that the 10 be extradited.

S. Dakota Rains Leave 105 Dead

TWO BOMB THREATS REPORTED ON PLANE FLYING TO KELOWNA

RICHMOND (CP) — RCMP picked up three men for questioning Friday night after two bomb threats involving a Pacific Western Airlines flight to Kelowna from Vancouver.

Police said one of the men was released and the other two are still in custody. No charges have been laid.

Police said they were told that a man waiting to board the PWA flight had said he had a bomb and someone else had a bomb. RCMP took two men into custody at that time. A search prior to takeoff revealed no bomb.

After the plane landed at Kelowna and departed on the return flight, RCMP said they were advised that a man aboard had made a similar statement. He was taken off the plane without incident on arrival here. A second search failed to turn up any explosives.

Tighter Security Measures Placed On Canadian Air Travel

MONTREAL (CP) — Airlines and airports in Canada have initiated tighter security measures in an effort to curb the threat of airplane hijackings.

The security moves came as Canadian pilots Friday threatened "complete withdrawal of air services" if the governments of the world fail to recognize their responsibility in the growing number of hijackings.

At the same time, Knut Hammarck, director-general of the International Air Transport Association, a United Nations agency based in Montreal, said his organization "notes with regret" that only three countries have ratified international conventions dealing with air hijacking. They are Trinidad, Tobago and Panama.

The scheduled airlines urged through IATA have constantly urged more action on the part of governments and airport authorities to put an end to acts of armed aggression against civil aviation." Mr. Hammarck said.

HIRE POLICE

The stepped-up security precautions at Canadian airports include the hiring of off-duty policemen. The Canadian government has ordered checks on all air travellers bound for Israel.

In the wake of the Lod Airport massacre at Tel Aviv last month.

The pilots' strike was threatened Thursday night by the International Federation of Airline Pilots Association. The association said it would ground the world's airlines for 24 hours June 10 unless the United Nations takes effective action against aerial hijacking.

The Canadian Airline Pilots Association issued a statement Friday saying it will join American pilots in boycotting any country that gives sanctuary to a hijacker, fails to return one or detains passengers or crew members.

GENEVA (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim announced today he has asked for consideration of a UN Security Council meeting to deal with the "very great menace" of international hijackings. He said he expressed his concern over the situation Friday to the president of the Security Council in response to a demand for UN action from an international pilots' group.

500 Missing As Disasters Follow Torrential Deluge

RAPID CITY, S.D. (CP) — At least 105 persons were killed and 500 missing in flooding, explosions and fires set off by torrential overnight rain in and around Rapid City, the Pennington County sheriff's office reported today.

A massive rescue effort was under way today and county officials said they had no idea what the final toll might be.

Deputy Sheriff Dale Bruce said the sheriff's office was receiving reports of deaths continually.

"Everything here is chaos," an eyewitness reported.

"There are people in the trees, on top of cars, everywhere. There are fires burning all over town and the firemen are too busy with rescue work to even worry about them."

The fires were attributed to gas from broken mains becoming ignited.

HUNDREDS HOMELESS

Six to 10 inches of rain hit the east slopes of the Black Hills during the night and the water poured into Rapid City, flooding much of the city and leaving hundreds homeless.

The Black Hills is a popular resort area in southwestern South Dakota. Rapid City is the area's largest city.

Many persons were reported stranded this morning. Homeless were being housed in schools, churches and private homes.

Bridges were swamped throughout the area and pedestrian traffic was banned in some areas because of fallen power lines.

Mayor Donald Barnett ordered police to arrest sightseers.

Homes and mobile homes were scattered and splintered in the flooded areas, bridges were out and cars strewn about streets and parks.

Interstate 90 was closed both north and east of Rapid City.

Parts of Rapid City were described as a lowland flood plain. A dam was washed out at Canyon Lake Park, turning the lake into one wide river, authorities said.

'Like Being In A War Zone'

National Guard troops, law enforcement officers and all available emergency crews moved into the city of 43,000 at dawn to lend assistance.

"It must be like in a war zone," said Harold Higgins, a Rapid City Journal writer and photographer who rode with fire rescue units during the night.

"There are fires all over the place and nothing can be done about it, because the city has been cut in half by the flooding Rapid Creek," Higgins said.

Broken gas lines started fires which resulted in injuries to a number of persons, authorities said. City officials ordered the main gas line in the city shut off.

HAIRY DRIVE CAUSED FLAP

NEWQUAY, England (Reuters) — When a young woman gave directions to car driver Martin Horner Friday, he unwittingly replied by driving off with her hair.

Martin explained to police here later that the woman had been speaking to him through the window of his car.

After the conversation, Martin wound up his window and drove off. It was not until sometime later that he noticed something flapping about that the woman's wig was edged in his window.

A policeman commented: "As far as I can recall, it is the first case of scapling we have had to deal with."

Fires Kill 9 Children

BARNES CITY, Iowa (AP) — A mother and four of her eight children were killed today when fire destroyed their two-story house here, authorities said.

The body of the woman, Viola Lamb, 34, was found beside a heating stove that authorities said she may have been trying to light when the fire started.

The other victims were Carol Lynn, 7, Lori Dianne, 9, Cynthia Sue, 13, and Donald Dean, 2.

Mrs. Lamb's other four children weren't home.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Five children died in a fire that destroyed three buildings here early today, police said.

The fire broke out in a three-story wood-frame structure and quickly spread to two other buildings, authorities said.

Police said the children, members of three families, were all in the same house when the fire broke out. The cause of the fire was under investigation.

Final Efforts Under Way To End Labor Dispute

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia construction industry negotiators agreed Friday to streamline bargaining in an attempt to settle contracts covering 30,000 tradesmen before the government imposes compulsory arbitration Wednesday.

Ed Fay, B.C. and Yukon Building and Trades Council secretary, said one representative from each of the eight major unions still negotiating have formed a joint negotiating committee to carry on bargaining.

Mr. Fay said C. J. Connaghan, Construction Labor Relations Association president, has agreed at least to initial meetings with the newly formed negotiating committee. Friday night, Mr. Connaghan denied any knowledge of such meetings.

Agreement or tentative agreement has been reached by seven unions. They are the laborers, painters, bricklayers, teamsters, machinists, glaziers and the Vancouver Island local of the sheet metal workers.

The unions forming the joint negotiating committee are: the carpenters, iron workers, electricians, boilermakers, heat frost insulators, plumbers, operating engineers and the sheet metal workers.

"WAIT-AND-SEE" position. The remaining unions that don't have contracts, the cement masons, plasterers and pile drivers, have traditionally made settlements after the major unions reached agreement.

Meanwhile, Jim Kinnaird, building trades council president, said the pressure of the government using compulsion should be removed so that the negotiators can concentrate on bargaining.

"I feel that what they should be doing is that the government should get the hell out of there," he said.

"There has been so much pressure coming at them (the negotiators) from the government and the media. It's not the climate, not the atmosphere to get settlements."

Unions still without agreement when the cabinet order ending the construction dispute goes into effect Wednesday will be referred to the mediation commission for binding settlement.

Burial Of Oil-Soaked Duck Marked Protest At B.C. Spill

DOUGLAS, B.C. (CP) — An oil-soaked duck, a victim of last Sunday's oil spill at Cherry Point Wash, was buried at the Canada-U.S. border Friday in protest against the proposed U.S. oil tanker route down the British Columbia coast.

A small wooden cross was placed at the grave-site of the duck killed by tide-driven oil that washed up on nearby Canadian beaches a day and a half after several hundred gallons of crude oil escaped from the World Bond, a Liberian tanker unloading at Cherry Point.

The ceremony, which included draping an oil-spattered Canadian flag over the bird's grave, came at the end of an hour-long rally and demonstration attended by about 500 persons.

Most of the speakers called on the U.S. and Canadian governments to abort the proposed tanker route from Alaska to Cherry Point.

Barry Mathier, New Democratic Party MP for Surrey-White Rock said Canada "must show some muscle in its dealings with the U.S." if the tanker route is to be killed.

Dave Brousson, Liberal MLA for North Vancouver-Capilano, supported referral of the proposed route to the International Joint Commission.

"I'm tired of major decisions that affect Canadians being made in U.S. courts," he said.

China Hurls Bitter Attack At U.S. Ecological Warfare

STOCKHOLM (CP-Reuters) — China bitterly attacked U.S. policy and methods in Indochina at a UN environment conference today and urged the meeting to condemn American ecological warfare.

But it stopped short of demanding that the Indochina issue be incorporated in the declaration of environmental principles the conference hopes to adopt—a demand that could have spelled the collapse of the vitally important document.

Speaking to the 114-nation meeting, chief Chinese delegate Tang Ke, deputy minister of fuels and chemical industries, devoted almost half of his 40-minute speech to attacks on the two super-powers, in particular the U.S.

He accused the Americans of massacring the Vietnamese people and poisoning their surroundings, using poisonous gas on all people, women and children in Cambodia, Laos and, recently, North Vietnam, and causing unprecedented damage to the human environment.

"China holds that this conference should not remain indifferent to such atrocities. We should surely condemn the U.S. for its wanton bombing and shelling, its destruction of peoples, plants and animals and pollution of the environment."

SOVIETS ALSO ASSAILED

Before Tang delivered his speech, Chinese delegate Pi Chi Lung at a news conference accused the U.S. and the Soviet Union of seeking world hegemony and said they were unwilling to spend the minimum on compensating other countries for the pollution they themselves had caused.

The super-powers' nuclear bombers flew "arrogantly" in the airspace of other countries while their nuclear missile submarines "dashed about" in other states' territorial waters, he added.

On Friday, Pi had said the Chinese would seek to have condemnation of U.S. actions included in the declaration of environmental principles. There was no immediate explanation on why the subsequent speech by Tang stopped short of that.

Fidel Claims He's Fine

VIENNA (Reuters) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, who has denied rumors of heart trouble during his current stay in Warsaw with the claim "I have a heart of steel," is touring Eastern Europe to bury old quarrels and show off the new Castro.

He wants to show that he and his country are good insurance risks—and deserve even more credits and aid than are already forthcoming.

Castro is journeying through Eastern Europe projecting the image of a balanced and statesmanlike approach to Latin American problems and world affairs in general.

The Castro of the 1970s is still a revolutionary, but one who apparently concedes that progress can come through the ballot box as well as from the muzzle of a gun.

He seems ready to accept Soviet policies permitting Moscow to broaden its economic and diplomatic relations with Latin American states which are hostile to Cuba's revolutionaries.

Weather Halts Oil Pump Out

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Pumping operations to extract 40,000 gallons of oil from the sunken Sidney E. Smith Jr. were halted Friday night due to weather conditions.

A United States Coast Guard spokesman said that strong winds and current in the St. Clair River proved too much of a problem for the crews. Pumping will resume when weather conditions are suitable.

About 33,000 gallons had been removed by 7:30 p.m. Friday. The Smith sank Monday after it collided with the Canadian grain carrier Parker Evans. No one was injured.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

B.C. Seeks Ottawa Aid To Help Pay Flood Bills

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Friday he has asked the federal government to share equally with British Columbia in the cost of flood damage in the province. In a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau, the premier described the flood situation as a "serious matter" and asked for federal assistance once damages are assessed. Mr. Bennett said a committee composed of L. J. Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, and G. E. Simmons, assistant deputy minister of water resources, will fly into the affected areas on Wednesday and assess the damage.

Members of United Steelworkers Local 480 have voted 90 per cent in favor of strike action at Cominco locations in Trail, Kimberley and Benson Lake. Local president R. L. Kelver said in Trail, Cominco's last offer was insufficient.

Bill Fair, who has challenged John Diefenbaker for the Progressive Conservative nomination in the federal riding of Prince Albert, feels it's time the former prime minister got out of politics. "There are a lot of friends of John Diefenbaker who feel he should retire from politics," he said in Edmonton. "He could do more for Canada, as some kind of counsel, perhaps, if he wasn't an MP. He certainly would be just as effective."

... 'he should quit'

President Tito of Yugoslavia ended a state visit to the Soviet Union today and left for home with assurance that the Kremlin regards peaceful co-existence as a prime principle governing relations with other Communist countries.

The mother of a four-year-old girl found drowned Thursday in a water-filled ditch was charged today with non-capital murder and attempted murder. Siegfried Tangen, 21, was remanded to June 16 when she appeared in Delta provincial court.

Henry A. Kissinger opened fence-mending talks with Japanese leaders today shortly after he was showered by anti-American leaflets tossed by two young demonstrators in the lobby of his Tokyo hotel. The U.S. presidential adviser sought to assure the Japanese that relations with Tokyo remain the basis of U.S. foreign policy in Asia despite President Nixon's summit meetings in Peking and Moscow.

Solicitor-General John Yaremko told the Ontario legislature Friday that a second inquest has been ordered into the death of Harold Greer, 26, who died following a highway accident last December. The man's body already has been the subject of two autopsies. The dead man's father, Dr. Frank Greer of Boston, has charged that the death at Ottawa's Montfort Hospital was medically preventable.

Phil Gagliardi, British Columbia's minister of rehabilitation, said in Vancouver Thursday the province needs more greedy people. "Greed, has been given to us by God," Mr. Gagliardi told the national convention of the Canadian Purchasing Management Association. He said that greed, in the form of business activity, has brought B.C. much of its material advantages. "The only thing they can take out of B.C. is profit," he said, referring to foreign investors. Government at all levels tax profits to death anyway, so there's not much that goes out of the country."

A Reading, Pa., policeman turned his gun on fellow officers for no apparent reason Friday, wounding them before shooting himself to death in view of his wife and seven-year-old son. This occurred before hundreds of spectators at the Reading Air Show, as the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds, a precision flying team, screamed overhead. Patrolman Charles W. Kurts, 31, pulled a .38-calibre pistol on fellow officers Olin Wait, 24, and Russell S. Huyett, wounded them, then killed himself.

In Silver Spring, Md., Dr. Joseph F. Schanno, who is treating wounded Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, said Friday the governor will be able to attend the Democratic national convention next month. "He is doing beautifully," Schanno reported.

Breakaway P.Q. Labor Group Has 'Working Man' In Mind

QUEBEC (CP) — A new breakaway Quebec labor federation formed Friday was named the Centrale des Syndicats Démocratiques to cheer's and delegates who were told it will truly represent the interests of the working man.

Further applause came when Paul-Emile Dalpe, elected provincial chairman of the convention, explained he does not intend to translate the name into English. He said the English should be used to the French pronunciation just as French-speaking people have to learn to pronounce "General Motors." Two resolutions brought out some of the bitterness which led nearly 600 delegates from 150 unions to break away from the Confederation of National Trade Unions and form the new group. One resolution proposed that all unions representing "teachers, professionals and intellectuals" be prohibited from joining the new group. The delegate proposing it angrily attacked anarchists and intellectuals who misled the workers.

However, the resolution was defeated. Another resolution by congress organizers suggesting Montreal be the headquarters of the new group aroused opposition from a delegate who remarked that the CNTU had been infiltrated by Montreal intellectuals and the new group should not "place itself in the jaws of the same wolf."

HQ IN QUEBEC CITY
The resolution was defeated and it was decided to locate headquarters in Quebec City. Delegates agreed the basic unit of the new group will be autonomous local unions. A federation of unions joining en bloc will remain intact. If a majority of unions in a federation joined the new group, the federation itself would be considered a member.

The CNTU is basically made up of federations of unions in a specific trade. Basic support for the new group has come from four of 11 CNTU federations. Substantial portions of the textile workers, clothing workers, building and wood workers and metal workers federations have already publicly disassociated themselves from the CNTU which had 235,000 members.

Mr. Dalpe, expelled as vice-president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, told delegates: "We will develop our own ideology but it will be developed by members and not imposed from the top."

The convention was called by Mr. Dalpe and two other major CNTU dissidents opposed to the alleged left-wing orientation of the CNTU.

Oil Spills 'Inevitable' But Precautions Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday that oil spills are inevitable and that governments can do little more than demand the safest transportation of oil and good clean up when spills happen.

He told the Commons during a special debate, triggered by a recent oil spill near Cherry Point, Wash.—it spread to Canadian shores—that demand for oil in North America is growing. New refineries and transportation routes to handle increasing fuel oil needs are the "pattern of the present and the future."

"There is very little we will be able to do except to provide for moving that oil on the safest routes and making provision for dealing with spills which will inevitably occur some time in the future."

"It does not matter how many precautions are taken, inevitably there is going to be a break somewhere. This has been the experience in the past; this will be our experience in the future."

Opposition MPs agreed, but blasted the government for its past record regarding preventive measures. Conservatives blamed the government for being indecisive; New Democrats hit it for not taking a hard line against the United States.

Mr. Sharp said the government has tried to convince the U.S. to give up plans for an oil tanker route along the B.C. coast to carry Alaskan oil to Washington.

PROTESTED ROUTE
The government had protested the tanker route as "inimical to Canadian interests" in May and had earlier expressed its concern to President Nixon during his April visit to Ottawa.

Energy Minister Donald MacDonald used the debate to disclose hopes for an announcement next week by companies interested in building a gas pipeline along the Mackenzie River Valley from the Arctic.

All parties agreed at the end of debate Friday—it began Thursday—to seek referral of the oil spill danger on the West Coast to the International Joint Commission, a Canada-U.S. agency that administers boundary agreements. As well, all agreed to a Conservative amendment to the motion that would pressure the IJC with funds and resources to study the matter.

But earlier New Democrat Leader David Lewis and colleague Grace MacInnis (Vancouver Kingsway) criticized the government for its acceptance of the inevitability of the U.S. tanker route.

Mr. Lewis described oil shipments along the coast as "almost equivalent to an act of war." And Mrs. MacInnis said that "the survival of this country is at stake."

The NDP leader said the government should go to the U.S. government and tell it that Canada "will not stand for large oil tankers going down the Pacific waters."

Mrs. MacInnis said Mr. Sharp had accepted the fact that destruction of the coastal environment was bound to happen.

SEEK BEST BALANCE
Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said that oil and natural gas will move from the North to the U.S. no matter what Canada does. It is up to the government to decide, and support, the route that provides the best balance between ecological hazards and economic practicality.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker replied to comments by both Mr. MacDonald and Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford about government efforts to make its views on the tanker route known to the U.S. by saying, "the air is full of notes going one way."

The U.S. administration has no intention of paying any attention to the government's notes and letters because the Liberal government is "not highly regarded" by the U.S. government.

The Canadian government was afraid to speak out to the U.S. in this matter as it was in others, Mr. Diefenbaker charged.

Gran Deschamps (L—Vancouver Quadra) did little to soothe fears about the dangers.

Army Patrol In N. Ireland Sees 2 Gunmen Shoot Girl

BELFAST (Reuter) — A British army patrol saw two gunmen open fire on a group of civilians in Belfast today, killing a teenage girl.

In another shooting nearby, gunmen earlier wounded a boy and a girl when they opened fire on an army post but overshot their target.

In Londonderry, three explosions damaged a golf club, injuring three persons. The army reported it had hit two men, and might have hit another, in two other incidents in the city.

In other parts of the province Protestant extremist barricades went up. The main site of the barricades was Belfast, where scores of them were erected by militant Protestants during the night. But by daybreak some had been pulled down, come by civilians acting on their own initiative and others at the request of the security forces.

HIJACK CARS
In what observers described as the tensest period, since Roman Catholic-Protestant rioting broke out in 1969, cars, buses, trucks and vans were hijacked by men in para-military uniforms and used to form the barricades.

More members of the right-wing Ulster Defence Association stood guard behind the barriers dressed in bush hats, khaki jackets and masks. They were armed with pick handles. Several main roads into the city were blocked, effectively sealing off Belfast, from the rest of Ulster.

For the last month, Protestants have threatened such action in protest against the failure of Britain's minister for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, to take action against Catholic "no-go" areas in Londonderry.

These areas, principally the Creggan and Bogside districts, are barricaded by the Irish Republic Army and security forces have not attempted to invade them.

WARN WHITELAW
Protestants have warned Whitelaw that if action is not taken against the Catholic strongholds, Protestants would establish their own "no-go" areas.

The Protestants are also demonstrating against Whitelaw's policy of releasing internees, many of whom they claim, go right back into the ranks of the IRA.

The militant Provisional wing of the IRA said Friday night a curfew had been imposed on all cars entering the Catholic Lower Falls Road area of Belfast.

U.S. Bombers Again Strike At N. Vietnam Supply Depots

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B-52 bombers struck at supply depots on two sides of the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi today, and hit Communist troop positions and staging areas only 23 and 27 miles northwest of Saigon.

The raids in South Vietnam were the closest to Saigon since the 1968 Tet offensive. Striking for the third successive day in North Vietnam, B-52s dropped more than 200 tons of bombs on war stockpiles 10 to 20 miles south of Dong Hoi and six miles northwest of the city.

U.S. spokesmen said the supplies were awaiting shipment across the demilitarized zone to support North Vietnam's 72-day-old offensive in the South. Dong Hoi is 45 miles north of the DMZ.

Other B-52s pounded supply depots inside the DMZ itself. Pentagon sources in Washington said Friday the U.S. has raised to nearly 200 the number of B-52s committed to the Vietnam war. This represents more than half the entire combat-assigned force of 390 B-52s.

Over-all, the U.S. has assigned more than 1,000 bombers and fighter-bombers of the air force, navy and marines to the current campaign.

North Vietnamese troops kept pressure on the central coastal province of Binh Dinh. More than 100 rounds of howitzer fire slammed into Fire Base Dao Nhong on Highway One, a mile northeast of the district town of Phay My, which has been under heavy pressure.

On the southern front, 160 North Vietnamese and 13 South Vietnamese were reported killed in a series of clashes that swirled from An Loc southward along Highway 13.

DIFFER IN SIZE
Cones of white spruce average two inches in length while those of black spruce are half that size.

A Fond Farewell Given To The Last Dr. Knox Graduating Class

By BOB CAMPBELL
Courier Staff

If there were tears, they were hidden in the subdued emotion of 135 Dr. Knox graduating students who sat quietly pretending to forget theirs was the last commencement exercise in the school's 12-year history.

"You are probably questioning what you as individuals will do from this point on in life," guest speaker, Noll Derriksan, Westbank Indian Chief, echoed the thoughts of his youthful listeners at the Kelowna Community Theatre, Friday.

"Many of you will continue your education and many of you will not," Chief Derriksan told the farewell graduating class, adding "whether you continue your education or join the work force, you will discover that growth has not been stopped with your education but has only just begun." As individuals, he envisioned the class as encountering "new horizons and new responsibilities."

Chief Derriksan reminded such responsibilities "are primarily to yourselves," adding paradoxically such responsibilities "are in areas that individuals often neglect to develop."

The guest speaker defined such basic responsibilities as the need to "make an effort toward self-discovery and knowledge of oneself." He also urged his listeners to "exert a real effort to expand one's self and not stop the learning process once you leave the schools."

Chief Derriksan reminded an open mind "will be the single, most important thing for you all to maintain the changes in our society that we will all experience in the future."

He told his audience it was "important that you all develop a social conscience" and since

"we all enjoy a good standard of living we must all contribute to our society to maintain the freedoms we enjoy and to make the changes that will become necessary in the future to make our country an even better place to live."

"I wish you all the best in your efforts in life," Chief Derriksan concluded.

Master of ceremonies, principal Murray Joyce, who welcomed parents and introduced platform guests, described the graduation school year as a "most unique school experience" for students whom he said, had to work under a revised system, shift, double shift and "swing shift" classes, extended school months and three principals.

"My only regret is I haven't known you longer," Mr. Joyce said, describing his listeners as "mature, sensitive and cooperative. 'I wish you good luck in the years to come.'"

The graduating class was introduced to the audience by separate division by platform guests, Ben Lee, H. H. Fast, Donald Robertson and Robert Fowler. Mr. Lee was lauded by Mr. Joyce for his guidance as a member of the school staff and graduation sponsor.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Joyce alluded to the school's beginning in 1960 and cited the first graduating class in 1963 which he said contained 49 students. Since that time, he added, there has been staff increases and changes, and Mr. Lee and vice-principal, L. S. Green, were the "only one's left" of the original personnel.

On behalf of the trustees of School District 23 (Central Okanagan), board chairman, T. R. Carter, urged his audience to "continue learning" since they would find, when they finished their education, employers

"more discriminating than ever." He described the duties of the school board as providing the "best education possible."

Congratulating the graduating class, district school superintendent, F. J. Orme, threw verbal bouquets at the audience and school staff.

"I think parents should accept a pat on the back" he said, adding graduating students had been "in the hands of a most capable and dedicated staff to whom I offer my most heartfelt congratulations."

Mr. Orme reminded grads although they had finished a phase in their education "you must not feel your education has come to an end." He added the class had "much more to learn" as well as more academic opportunities of which they should take advantage. A generation ago, he said, students "didn't have the advantages or opportunities you have today." On behalf of the minister of education, Mr. Orme wished students "every success."

Other platform guests included James Clark, Nora Farina and Mrs. Fred Chamberlain, education convener of the Dr. Knox Chapter of IOOE.

Unit Receives More Financing

The South Okanagan Union Board of Health has received another $40,000 grant under the federal Department of Manpower Local Initiative Program. Representing an extension of an initial LIP program, the grant was described by board chairman, Avery King, as "recognition of the quality of work carried out under the supervision of the South Okanagan Health Unit and its director, Dr. D. A. Clarke."

Okanagan - Boundary M.P. Bruce Howard, said the extension will permit employment of 22 South Okanagan residents to carry out community care and nursing programs, ground water research, submarine photometer tests and related duties.

The board recently approved a vote of non-confidence in Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and finance minister, Premier W. A. C. Bennett, because of the government's lack of adequate staff provision to the unit and the health district it serves.

The official motion from the board condemned Mr. Loffmark and the Premier for their "cavalier treatment of this board's concern to carry out its health responsibilities to the people of the Okanagan."

Curtailment of health unit staffing, the resolution stated, prevented the administration of "numerous inspections required by law." As examples, the resolution stipulated 55 per cent of water monitoring was conducted, with seven per cent food premises inspections, nine per cent campsite inspections and 1.9 per cent factory inspections. No mobile home and community care facility examinations had been carried out, the resolution added.

The problem was amplified by Dr. Clarke at the second quarterly meeting of the board Wednesday. He said the unit carried out 220 domestic water supply inspections where 400 were required by law. There were 36 inspections of food premises against 500 required by law, and 10 campsite inspections against 110 under government regulations.

The unit also inspected 10 factories compared to 503 examinations required by law. Regulations required 70 inspections of mobile homes when none have been conducted by the health unit this year because of staff shortages.

As a follow-up to a report on Rattlesnake Island contained in Thursday's Courier, the board received word from Municipal Affairs Minister, Dan Campbell, the matter was of concern to his department which had the subject "under active consideration." The board had written the minister appraising him of construction on the island contrary to health control and building and zoning regulations, and enquiring what action the government intended to take on the matter.

Judy Morran Most Honored

A smiling and slightly nervous Judy Morran, was the most honored student at the farewell Dr. Knox 1972 commencement exercises, Friday, at the Kelowna Community Theatre.

She walked in the limelight three times and almost swept the awards field as the recipient of accounting, humanitarian and citizenship prizes.

Judy was described as a "most outstanding and talented girl" by teacher, Nora Farina, who presented the recipient with the accounting award. Almost before she could reach her place among fellow students on the theatre stage, Miss Morran was called again to receive the humanitarian citation from Donald Robertson.

Not surprisingly, she received audience reaction when she came to the fore again as recipient of the citizenship trophy from guest speaker, Noll Derriksan, Westbank Indian chief.

Receiving citizenship scrolls were: Margaret Bredin, Deanna Chapman, Robert Hayes, Renate Krahn, Norman Meek, Henry Mieszhalski, Barbara Moseley, Tim Pells, Jean Scott and Grant Weddell.

Miss Scott also won the academic plaque in a field of six which included Miss Morran. The citation was presented by Mr. Orme, who also distributed scrolls to Laura Bartlett, Gary Demofsky, Robert Hayes, Lynn Hilton and Steve Koehle.

Miss Hilton had her own moment of glory as recipient of the principal's general proficiency award from principal Murray Joyce, who described her as having an "outstanding academic record" as well as being active in sports.

AWARDS
Other award highlights included presentation of a Dr. Knox Chapter of IOOE scholarship for $250 to Noelle Ponich by chapter education convener, Mrs. Fred Chamberlain, a science and mathematics prize to Kenneth Anderson from James Clark, and a service award plaque to Wendy Wijk from school board chairman, T. R. Carter.

Service award scrolls were presented to Mark Fabri, Kenneth Jemson, Norman Meek, Ian Paine and Debra Price. Graduating class president, Kenneth Jemson, turned the awards tables, by presenting principal Joyce with a potted tree "and four others" which he said were intended to commemorate the last graduation to both teachers and students.

1972 Recreation Program Healthy For Entire Family

As usual, the 1972 version of the city's summer recreation program promises healthful family entertainment and instruction.

From July 4 to Aug. 25, the program includes such diversions as swimming lessons and competitive swimming at city parks, tennis, baseball, yoga, and outdoor sports for boys and girls. Special arts and crafts classes, water painting and sketching, first aid, water survival, hockey and figure skating instruction.

Registration for the aquatic program is scheduled June 19 to 24 in Centennial Hall at the arena. Later registration is available by contacting the city recreation department.

Four two-week sessions for tadpoles and pre-beginners Red Cross and beginners Red Cross will be held July 4 to 14; July 17 to 28; July 31 to Aug. 11 and Aug. 14 to 25. A Red Cross instructional school will be held Aug. 25 to Sept. 1.

Basically designed for boys and girls from five to 12 years, the playground program will provide responsible leadership in arts and crafts, low-organized games, story-telling adventure trips and special events.

Further details on dates and fees for program activities is available from the city adult education office at 3-6011.

SEEN and HEARD

The man who reportedly drove the first automobile from Kelowna to Vernon and Sundry other pioneer accomplishments, Art Jones, is attending a weekend power boat regatta on Harrison Lake. Mr. Jones built the Kelowna area's first speed boat and his "Miss Kelowna" was the speediest on the lake. Mr. Jones celebrates his 90th birthday Tuesday.

The guessing game starts on June 14—when Kelowna residents will be able to watch the 12 Lady of the Lake candidates on television. The first of a series of five minute interviews with each candidate starts on Wednesday at 11:30 p.m., following the 11 p.m. newscasts. The series runs nightly until June 25.

Can Bergstrom, of Kelowna, was eight strokes off the lead after the first round of the Ontario Open Golf Tournament being played in Toronto. Another Kelowna golfer, Ted Gellert, shot an 80 in the first round led by Windsor's Bob Panasiuk and his three-under-par 67.

Big things are planned for opening night of The Godfather, playing at the Paramount Theatre starting July 26. Bill Howe, manager of the theatre said it was going to a red carpet treatment opening night, with invited guests. The red carpet to be used, is the same one used by the Queen when she visited Kelowna. It wasn't easy getting it, Mr. Howe said. He spent over an hour with various officials at city hall, who were trying to remember just where they had stored the thing.

Selco Gets School Job

A tender by Selco Construction Ltd. was approved by members of the board for School District 23 Thursday for additions to the Westbank and Lakeview Elementary Schools.

The amount bid by Selco for the job was $72,551. The bid will now go to the provincial department of education for final approval. Only one other bid was received by the board for the construction and it was from Doulillard Construction of Kelowna.

TOGETHER TO PRESERVE THE EARTH

Earth Day celebrations in Kelowna take place Sunday at 2 p.m. at the bandshell in City Park. Shown in the photo are two of the participants in the celebrations, Father Francis Godderis of Immaculata High School and Ohrai Fuji-kawa of the Kelowna Buddhist Church. The celebrations here will centre around local involvement in keeping the environment in its natural state. There will be several speakers as well as concerts put on by local school and choral groups. The program is co-ordinated with a world-wide celebration taking place on Sunday to bring to the forefront problems besetting this planet.

No Tax Increases... For Kelowna Charter

There will be no tax increases for British Columbia residents to support proposals contained in the Kelowna Charter, 1972, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Friday.

The premier, looking rested and fit despite a hectic, 13-day tour of the province with the cabinet, made the statement on his arrival at his office in the legislative buildings.

The Kelowna Charter, announced in Kelowna June 1, included a wide-ranging package of proposals, including cancellations of provincial succession duties and gift taxes.

Also included was an unspecified provincial supplement for senior citizens, an increase in B.C. social assistance allowance benefits to handicapped persons and an increase in the minimum wage from the current $1.50 an hour.

At the time the charter was announced, Mr. Bennett did not mention specific figures and he declined to elaborate Friday although he was questioned on all points.

VERY SUCCESSFUL
When asked if there would be tax increases to support the proposals, he said: "The answer is no. There will be no tax increases to pay for the '72 charter."

Mr. Bennett described the tour, which saw demonstrations at several points along the route as "a very successful one."

"This tour was not a political one, it was an economic one," Mr. Bennett said, "a case of a people's government meeting the grass roots and we did meet the grass roots."

Although he expressed sympathy for Agriculture Minister Cyril Shefford, who suffered a broken collarbone and a bruise in the back in a demonstration in New Westminster, Mr. Bennett indicated he thought the demonstrations had little significance.

"The people themselves were very friendly everywhere we went," he added.

Mr. Bennett said one purpose of the tour was to "find out how our policies were working by listening to the people and finding out what they had to say. We will change our policies in accordance with what we were told," he said.

Although pressed on the question of when he would call an election, the premier would only reiterate earlier statements that there was a 75 per cent chance of an election this year.

MARGO THOMPSON NEW TEEN MAYOR

Kelowna Teen Town held its annual Mayor's banquet Friday evening with 18-year-old Margo Thompson being mayor of the organization for the upcoming year.

The vice-mayor for 1972-73 will be 18-year-old Pat Hartwick. The banquet was attended by Kelowna City Mayor Hilbert Roth and Greg Amundrud of the Kelowna Lions Club. Past Mayor of the organization Keith Cooper along with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Cooper made up the head table along with guest speaker Doug Murphy.

Murphy was president of the Teen-Town organization three years ago and he told members at the banquet what the position did for him and how he appreciated it. He was given a standing ovation after his talk.

Two awards were presented to Teen-Town members one being the best Teen-Towner, Pat Hartwick and the most improved Teen-Towner, Blain Morris. The new executive will be installed at a meeting in Centennial Hall, Sunday evening.

Flood Threat A Guideline For Zoning

Current flood and flood threat conditions in the Valley should be used as a guideline by regional districts for future reference in zoning and subdivision approval.

The Okanagan Basin Water Board, on a suggestion by chairman, Len Bawtree, approved notifying the three regional districts of such at its regular meeting Thursday.

The board also took a look at a signed petition from residents of the Peachland Irrigation District concerning poor quality water. The petition stated residents were "dissatisfied" with water conditions for the past six weeks, although they were aware the spring run-off was the cause of "excessive dirt and sand in our water."

The petition added the cost of monthly hook-up fees "should allow for an adequate filtering system."

Bo a r d secretary-manager, William Parchomchuk, will investigate the matter.

Kelowna Dragoons Squadron Still Short Of New Recruits

The local British Columbia Dragoons (Militia), B Squadron, is still short some 35 enrollees in a federal government student employment program.

Militias are being used in the $85 million program to train, administer and organize students from 17 to 24 years from July 11 to Aug. 23.

Trainees, who will be encouraged to join the BCDs, will receive $8.80 a day during the 44-day program which encompasses academic and field instruction in drill, first aid, map use, communications, field craft, leadership, physical education, search and rescue, field exercises and citizenship training. The program is available to women, and five will be accepted in the local program, mainly in the communications aspect.

Enrollees will be paid every two weeks during the training period and uniforms and badges will be supplied.

Major J. R. Young, deputy commanding officer of the local militia, said Friday he had 15 applications to date, including three female enrollees. The program calls for 50 trainees in the Kelowna area. Major Young said he would like enrolment completed by June 30 for males, and June 26 for women.

Further information on the program is available at Kelowna Armories, 3-5515.

Incorporation Up Once More

It is hoped a committee set up to study the pros and cons of incorporating this community will begin meeting next week, said Fred Stevens, president of Outland Chamber of Commerce. He is chairman of the committee, with Mrs. Birt Showler as secretary.

The committee will investigate all phases of the matter, and has been assured help from the B.C. municipal affairs department. Meetings will be closed, but information will be provided through press releases. It is hoped a public meeting will be held.

The chamber executive has been studying the matter. Added to the committee have been Colin Day, Terry Ruttle, Aubrey Blanchard, Bill York-Hardy and Ben Lee. These names were suggested following an ill-fated attempt to form a ratepayers' association last month. One of the objects of this group would have been to form a committee to study incorporation.

Ask The Government

Health and welfare agencies in Kelowna should make representation to the provincial government if they want combined facilities, the board of the Regional District of Central Okanagan learned this week.

At present these facilities are located in rented, inadequate premises. A committee was formed representing various agencies to see if they could be located in one building.

Following a presentation by Dr. F. E. McNair, director of the South Okanagan Mental Health Unit, the board asked its administrative committee to investigate.

Chairman W. C. Bennett said the committee was told by provincial officials plans should be presented to the latter. A meeting will be arranged between the committee and Dr. McNair.

LABOR, MANAGEMENT WORKING TOGETHER

Construction trainees locally are currently taking advantage of an Okanagan College based construction and general laborers' training program, a joint venture by the construction and general laborers' union, Locals 602, 1070, 1093 and 168, and the Annual garnated Construction Association. The course includes upgrading in teaching and pipe-laying, transit and level, steel burning, concrete placing and vibrating, construction materials, rigging, slinging, signalling, foreman's course, masons' tender, soil compaction, Rakerman (asphalt), industrial first aid and commercial diving. Instructor Nick Kinlak (with dark glasses) shows the finer points of slump testing to trainees in concrete placing and vibrating.

Alarm At Earth's Health May Prove Link To Peace

Alarm over the condition of planet earth may well be the elusive link of world peace.

We have been searching for a common denomination that would bind people and nations together. Some have thought that understanding between peoples carries rainbow colors. But understanding and misunderstanding may both present causes for bloody war.

Christians believe that if all mankind were to be bound to Jesus Christ as followers of His will and partakers of His life, then we would love each other as He has loved us. This we know will be the foundation of peace in heaven. On earth? Humanity is still so shot through with the drive for self-magnification that even in the Christian Church our oneness is splintered. In some areas though, the community of Christian love is very beautiful and full of promise.

Experience and observation shows that people like us can be pushed by fear into a oneness. Whenever the goal of unity is more important than the goal of disharmony there is a "getting together." So Britain, Russia and America became allies on the battlefield. So Pharisees, Sadducees and Herodians, people of contradictory ideologies, combined together to destroy Jesus. And if our world were to be "invaded" from people of another planet, there would be total world alliance to "defend" ourselves.

There comes now a cause so great, so charged with threat, that it may well be the touchstone of our togetherness as a human family.

Those who are in the know have been trying to tell us that our one and only beautiful earth is losing its ability to sustain life. They say we are all on a sinking ship, and that our only hope is to man the pumps and scuttle our needless loads.

There is no need to recount the things that are haywire, except to say that for far too long a time we have been exploiting our environment and mis-using our freedoms. Behind these two sins there are at least two reasons — we are greedy for money and we are lazy. That oil has to be gotten out from the Arctic regardless! That banana peeling has to be thrown out the car window. Ad infinitum.

To "de-pollute" the world is our common task. We are all in it this time. The church is in it as we learn that this world is God's world and He has entrusted us with its care as well as with its benefits. Scientists are under obligation to produce safe ways of de-bugging our produce crops; cleaning away dirt, and of producing power. They are working at it. It is comforting to know that presently in Stockholm there is a great international conference on, with the express aim of, literally, saving our environment.

The time is ripe for us to celebrate creation and give thanks that there is yet time to be good stewards of God's good earth.

REV. IAN HIND,
First Baptist Church, Kelowna

A Great Guessing Game

One of the great guessing games of the United Nations Environment conference is to figure what the total cost would be if all the UN anti-pollution proposals are adopted.

A news release from Stockholm says Canadian Environment Minister Jack Davis took a stab at it and came up with the figure of $2 billion a year—partly spent by participating countries at home and partly spent abroad.

Of that total, he said at a news conference, annual Canadian costs would be about $100 million.

Canada "is prepared to support the UN action plan" Davis said when asked whether Canada is prepared to pay that much.

He estimated that not all of the proposed Canadian financial commitment would be "new money." Some of the proposals in the UN action plan already exist in one form or another in Canada and money is being spent on these programs.

He concluded that about one-third of the $100 million would be "new money"—additional sums that would have to be allocated.

He added that this percentage would rise in time.

The estimated Canadian annual costs is equivalent to the proposed annual budget of the planned UN environment agency.

But, of course, the two figures are separate. Canada is ready to contribute between $5-7 million a year to the UN environment agency. The United States will pay $40 million and other UN members will make their own contributions to ensure that the new agency, once approved, gets its full annual budget.

Eventually as countries, including the U.S., gain confidence in the new organization and approve of its anti-pollution operations, total annual allocations are likely to increase.

Maurice Strong of Canada, conference secretary-general and the man most likely to head the new agency, already has indicated that while the proposed budget would not be enough, the new organization undoubtedly would proceed slowly at first with its expenditures and its operations gaining momentum as it expanded its work.

Canada's environment minister, a strong supporter of the UN action plan, said things are going "very well" for Canada.

"Indeed, we have not suffered any setbacks so far," he added.

However, Eymard Corbin, Davis's parliamentary secretary, said there appears to be no hope that delegates will approve an ocean dumping convention at this conference. A working group named to draft the agreement failed to agree on terms, he said.

Another adviser said delegates from several countries now are preparing draft articles of agreement which may be signed at a world ocean dumping conference which Britain has offered to hold in London.

What Canada hopes to see in such a final agreement is the recognized authority for all countries whose coastal regions are involved to take action against ships and tankers which cause contamination through dumping at sea.

Saving The Seas Of Major Concern

By JOHN HARBORON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The sea, its preservation rather than its defence: This will be a major part of Canadian foreign policy for the 1970s and beyond.

The message was coming loud and clear from the actions of Jack Davis, our minister of environment, during the United Nations Conference on the Human Environment in Stockholm. During that massive, multi-national event, Davis tried to get acceptance of a new 22-point plan for the seas to control ocean pollution.

Mr. Davis failed to win British or American support when he asked the conference to endorse proposals that governments should have the right to ban polluting vessels and to enforce anti-pollution measures in their offshore waters.

NEW HAZARD

A foreign policy geared more to protecting the environment and less to military defence, will have a new hazard. This is opposition to Canadian proposals from friendly rather than hostile or ideologically-opposing powers.

Jack Davis went to Stockholm within days of a serious oil spill off the lower B.C. mainland, (the is a British Columbia MP) and the sinking of a U.S. coal carrier in the ship channel of the narrow and busy St. Clair River. Both ships involved were American and spilled oil into our waters. The B.C. oil spill was coming from a tanker at Cherry Point, Wash.

Mr. Davis also went to Stockholm following a year of persistent but unsuccessful pleas to the Americans not to use the West Coast ocean route for super tankers moving Arctic oil from Alaska. A few weeks ago, the U.S. department of the interior approved a trans-Alaska oil pipeline and with it the West Coast tanker route.

The same day Jack Davis made his proposal in Stockholm, Thor Heyerdahl, the renowned Norwegian explorer pleaded for international ocean standards against deep-sea pollution. Who will forget his tragic revelation that pollution is rampant even in the mid-Atlantic, 1,500 miles from North American and European shores?

OUR MESSAGE

If the message didn't come through to our friends at Stockholm that Canada means business, remember at the beginning of the 1970s that Canada acted on its own in two major policy decisions affecting our ocean frontiers.

The extension of our territorial waters to the 12-mile limit was declared unilaterally and Washington officially protested. The Arctic Waters Pollution Act was also declared unilaterally, though Parliament must still approve it. And it does include policing powers.

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp have spoken out strongly against the West Coast, super-tanker route, and told the Americans officially we are opposed to it because of its potential permanent sea and shoreline pollution.

Paradoxically, because we are a sea power but have no merchant fleet, we can speak out against the big shipping nations whose vessels are polluting coastal and deep-sea waters of the world.

We are a three-ocean nation whose muscle will be legislative. Our friends and neighbors should get the message.

CAPITAL COMMENT

Dominion Day To Be Renamed

By FARMER TISSINGTON
Ottawa Bureau

Those who like to chip away at our traditions are making another move now to change the name of Canada's unique observance and national holiday, Dominion Day. Recently, Prime Minister Trudeau indicated the government planned to bring in legislation for this purpose and those who support that view have been renewing their call to change the name of the July 1 celebration to Canada Day or Confederation Day.

Given the general trend in such matters in this country in recent years I have little doubt that the name Dominion Day will be replaced, perhaps even in time for the 1972 observance. However, I think it might be helpful if those people who feel so strongly about this name change were to understand a bit more about the background of the words Dominion Day.

Sir Leonard Tilley, one of the Fathers of Confederation, is generally given credit for the use of the word dominion in reference to Canada. When the Fathers of Confederation met to discuss the terms and conditions of confederation and the drafting of the British North America Act there was considerable discussion as to what the new united Canada should be called. As so often happens when politicians get together, it seemed impossible to get a consensus of view and the discussion on the name was left over until the following day's meeting.

CHAPTER FROM BIBLE

As was Sir Leonard's custom, he read a chapter from the Bible when he arose the next morning and happened to choose Psalm 72, Verse 1 which reads: "He shall have Dominion also from sea to sea." The thought struck him that the Dominion of Canada would make a splendid name for the new nation and his suggestion was adopted by the Fathers at that morning's conference.

Among the members of Parliament who will oppose any effort to change the name of Dominion Day is Prince Edward Island's scholar and political scientist, Heath Macquarrie. He has carried on a vigorous campaign over the years to explain the origin of the word and to deny that it has any connotation of colonialism. He points out, for instance, that many people think the word was imposed on Canada by the British. In fact, the colonial secretary wrote to the Queen at that time stating it was the desire of the British North Americans that the word dominion be used.

Canada stands in the western hemisphere, geographically, and to deny that it has any connotation of colonialism is in apparent fear that we will be taken over, not just economically, but culturally. One of the things that marks Canada as different from the United States and other western hemisphere nations is the word Dominion and yet many people prefer the usage of a well known United States' word, federal.

The Mackenzie King and St. Laurent governments were the first to attempt to downgrade the use of the word dominion and one of the more humorous stories concerning this effort was that what stopped them in their tracks was the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Dropping the "D" from the familiar DNS would have left an undesirable implication. It remained for the present government to find a way around this difficulty by renaming the agency Statistics Canada with that abbreviation, StatCan, as an abbreviation.

Those who are concerned about the word there is something antique and colonial about the word dominion should recall that it was under this word and title that Canada achieved its own fully recognized independence. Mr. Macquarrie notes, "I hope we will cleave to something that is significant and unique to Canada, the creation of a proud, free and independent dominion."

QUEBEC PRESS SAYS:

Bourassa May Be Feeling Disenchanted With Ottawa

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: Premier Robert Bourassa, who hurried the day after his election to bury the hatchet in relations with the federal government so as to prove to us the benefits of his theory of profitable federalism, seems to be growing slowly disenchanted.

The latest theory about seeking administrative arrangements between Quebec and the federal government got a going-over when Finance Minister John Turner unilaterally decided to increase old age pensions when Quebec had long hoped for agreement on this question. So Quebec bit the dust.

Naturally, the Canadian government leader, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, did not miss adding his grain of salt. Replied to the attacks of Mr. Bourassa and Mr. Castonguay, the Canadian prime minister peremptorily declared: "There are enough important problems in Quebec without bothering with fly specks."

Mr. Trudeau has become a master in the art of stupidity. We find quite remarkable this insipid remark by Mr. Trudeau because it is far from really replying to the requests of the Bourassa government. We are inclined to ask ourselves precisely what game Mr. Trudeau wants to play with Quebec?

It seems evident to us that there is a striking interdependence between Quebec problems and the continual failures in Quebec-Ottawa relations. If Mr. Trudeau calls this "fly specks" he does not want to face the problems and has a funny notion of federalism.

Mr. Trudeau knows better than anyone that the real source of the problem lies in the famous grey areas of the British North America Act.

Ottawa profits from these constitutional ambiguities and its unlimited spending power to invade a number of areas without consulting the provinces. This obliges the provinces to invest in sectors they do not judge as having priority.

It is, therefore, at this level that Quebec has decided to attack the basic problem of re-establishing equilibrium between the two levels of government. We believe Mr. Bourassa is on the right track although it was cleared long ago by preceding governments. —Rejean LaCombe (June 2)

Montreal La Presse: In 1971, the Quebec Liberal party brought out the trumpets to remind people it had been in power for a year. This year, it changed the style.

Several days ago, Robert Bourassa launched three works "of information, reference and documentation" prepared by the party's information commission.

What is first striking in the three documents is the very clear wish of the Liberals to present themselves as efficient, hard-working, competent administrators. . . . Impressive in social affairs, good in justice and finance, satisfactory in agriculture, communications, education, environment, weak in cultural affairs and pitiable in immigration, the realizations of the Liberal government somewhat resemble each of the ministers which allowed them—resolutely reformist with Claude Castonguay, liberal with Jerome Choquette (despite the declarations of recent days), aimed at efficiency with Raymond Garneau.

On the other hand, such a balance sheet would not be fair without taking into account the budget of each department.

After two years in power, the Quebec Liberal party still presents a composite, even confusing, image. . . . One senses that the positive record which the party can offer today is based on the strenuous work of a few ministers. Others unfortunately succumb to mediocrity or let themselves become absorbed by the reactionary instinct of a blundering membership in the legislature.

What the information commission's record does not say is that the Quebec Liberal party is no longer a reformist party.

Many party members still . . . dream of a union movement which, as in the past, would no longer contest "the system" or become more federalist than Mr. Trudeau himself. Resolutions adopted during the Liberal party's regional meetings testify to this.

"A quiet firmness has been our approach since the beginning of our mandate," Robert Bourassa recently told 500 Liberal members in Montreal. "We want this firmness to continue," a grassroots member told him. After the events of the last few weeks, it can be asked whom such a firmness will benefit and whom it affects.—Claude Gravel (June 5)

CANADA'S STORY

Canada Adopted Decimal Currency

By BOB BOWMAN

Despite pressure from Britain to continue to use pounds, shillings and pence, Canada adopted the American decimal system on June 10, 1958. The other British North American colonies retained their own systems until 1971 when Parliament passed the Uniform Currency Act.

Canada had favored the decimal system since 1851 when Finance Minister Francis Hincks began working towards it. Britain disallowed one of his measures.

Currency in the British North American colonies was very confused until 1871. In fact the system was not straightened out completely in British Columbia and Prince Edward Island until 1881.

There were a large number of Spanish coins circulating in the Maritimes owing to trade with the West Indies. When Nova Brunswick separated from Nova Scotia, Spanish pistareens were in circulation and were called "shillings." There were also Spanish "dollars"—which were large coins, and it was difficult to make small change. Merchants cut them into smaller pieces known as "four bits" and "two bits," expressions still used today for 50 cents and 25 cents.

British currency also circulated in the colonies including Canada, but it had different values. The pound was worth about $5 in Canada, but there was a Halifax pound worth only $4, and a York shilling.

Some readers will remember the "shin plaster" which circulated all over Canada until perhaps 1930. It was paper, like a small dollar bill, and was worth 25 cents.

The destruction of the Czechoslovakian village of Lidice was announced by German authorities 30 years ago today—in 1942—in reprisal for the assassination of Reichsprotektor Reinhard Heydrich, senior SS officer, by British-trained guerrillas. All male villagers and some women were shot and the remainder sent to concentration camps. The village was razed and all references to it in government records were removed. In sympathy, towns in Mexico and the United States took the name Lidice.

Double Ring Ceremony In St. Theresa's Church

A double-ring ceremony united in marriage Yvonne Marie De Boer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon De Boer of Rutland, and Gary Edward Weintz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Weintz of Kelowna.

The May ceremony was conducted by Rev. F. L. Flynn in St. Theresa's Roman Catholic Church which was decked with bouquets of multi-colored tulips and white narcissus. Mrs. Lucille Gaudreau of Rutland presided at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white tulle gown, which was a fully heirloom gown, worn by the groom's mother 25 years before. White lace formed her headress and lace trimmed her shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of red carnations.

Brenda Weintz of Kelowna served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Rosa Felice of Kelowna and Susie De Boer of Rutland. Flower girl was Michelle De Boer and ring bearer was Roger Huitema of Chilliwack.

Floor-length gowns of nylon sheer in mauve, yellow and pink with scoop necklines were worn by the attendants. They carried nosegays of white daisies. The flower girl's mini dress was of similar style and colors. Colored rosettes were tucked into their hairdos.

Best man was William F. Weintz of Kelowna and ushers were Gary De Boer and Harry De Boer, both of Rutland.

A blue lace dress with matching jacket was worn by the bride's mother when she received the guests at the reception at East Kelowna Hall. A corsage of white carnations completed her ensemble.

Toasts were proposed by Gary De Boer, Bill Weintz and Jim Ditchkoff.

For a honeymoon trip to Vancouver the bride chose a navy blue pant suit with white and brown top. Tiny bell necklace and earrings and a straw purse and brown sandals completed her outfit. The couple will reside at 295 No. 7, Clarissa Road, Rutland.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. George Szoloi, Abbotsford; Mr. and Mrs. H. Mackintosh, Maple Ridge; Mr. and Mrs. Huitema, Chilliwack and other guests from Vancouver, Richmond, Ladner and White Rock.

Men Finally Win 'Sex' Pairs

At the Capri Wednesday evening, the Kelowna Duplicate Bridge Club held its annual men's and women's pairs championship. There were 20 tables in play and this year the men finally won by a score of 297 to 247.

Next week will be the second game of the summer series. Results of Wednesday's play with an average of 108 were:

Dear Ann Landers: My husband refuses to buy twin beds. He says his parents slept together for 50 years and what's good enough for them is good enough for us.

Bennie gets pains in one leg every few weeks and uses an electric heating pad. He says he has sciatica but it sounds like the gout to me. The problem is that Bennie is a restless sleeper. Many mornings I have awakened with his heating pad on my head and a terrific headache. Tell me if you think his problem is sciatica. Also, does he have the right to insist I share his bed even though it interferes with my rest?—Headache in Hillsdale.

I suggest a king-twin arrangement (two mattresses), made up as a single bed. This has the advantage of proximity but the comfort of separate beds. Don't tell me you can't afford it. The alternative is much more costly.

Dear Head: I am not a physician, and even if I were I would not diagnose Bennie's ailment through the mail. He should have a medical evaluation and not try to treat himself.

Be yourself. Especially do not feign affection. Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline be gentle with yourself. You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, the universe is Lady of the Lake, Wendy Nichols accompanied by her official chaperone, Mrs. Nola Peters and Director of Royalty, Mrs. Norman Hilborn have returned from a successful promotion trip to Calgary and Edmonton. Also accompanying the trio was Glen Carlton, manager of the Kelowna International Regatta Association. The good will group left by PWA on Sunday and returned on Wednesday. At both Alberta centres they were interviewed by all media, TV, CBC radio and the press, and report hospitality was tops.

Back from attending the Dominion Command Conference of the Royal Canadian Legion at Regina are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ewing, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Schmidt and Alan Barnes who represented the Kelowna branches. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Whitehouse of Kelowna also attended the conference as representatives and were greatly impressed with the clean beauty of the prairie city.

Enroute home Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse stayed overnight at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Teindel of Trail, where they learned the wonderful news about their 12 year old granddaughter, Tracy, who received the Kootenay Rose Bowl for the most promising dancer. Tracy also won the Knights of Columbus provincial trophy for public speaking.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ralstrick of Oyma have returned from Edmonton where they attended the funeral of Mr. Ralstrick's mother.

Among recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hinks of Patterson Avenue were the latter's sisters-in-law, Mrs. Wilf Stanfield and Mrs. Adam Johnson of Vancouver and another sister-in-law and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Heslop of Regina, just left for their Saskatchewan home.

'Swan Song' For M.V. Okanagan Medley Of Poems And Reminiscences

"I was not invited to the party but I never expected to be. The party is for the crew and not for the likes of me. But I have feelings and I am hurt at losing my wonderful crew. The boys who kept me sailing when the weather was rough or smooth. Because they were dedicated and to me they were always true. They kept me warm in winter and in summer they helped me along. But now they are no longer needed and I will soon be gone. They are taking away a land mark and nothing will soon be heard. Of the lonely wail of my siren as I come into port. But my boys will always remember all the sounds and sights. Of the M.V. Okanagan, who carried them through those nights. I, too, will remember a very wonderful crew. I know you are all going to miss me and I sure will miss you. Goodbye Shipmates, May Your Waters Always be Smooth and Blue."

This tribute to the M.V. Okanagan, the CP tugboat which made its last voyage up the Okanagan on May 31, is typical of the sentiments expressed during the farewell party on Sunday evening. Appropriately enough, the party attended by crew and officers and many former officers was staged on board the M.V. Fintry, a sister ship retired some years ago. Among dignitaries present for the party were Assistant CP Rail Superintendent, Jack Petley and Mrs. Petley of Penticton; Vern Rose, CP district manager, marketing and sales, Kelowna; H. J. Tumilty, assistant superintendent of engineering and Mrs. Tumilty, Victoria; Harry Chapman, another CP representative. Cap Capozzi also was a special guest at the gathering which started off with a cabaret styled dinner and included dancing in addition to reminiscing, poems and short speeches.

At the tie up at Penticton on May 31 the crew and a number of "last voyage" guests were invited to a lawn social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Petley in Penticton. Mr. Petley emceed the party on board the Fintry which was attended by 100 persons including many former crew members who came back especially for the memorable occasion.

'Politics Is In Every Home' Women To Become Involved'

"It is natural that women should be active in politics, for politics have come right into the home, with every decision made, every policy debated, every act passed. No woman today can afford not to be vitally interested in politics."

Mrs. Alene Holt, national president of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association told members of the Kelowna Primrose Club at a luncheon meeting Friday at the Kelowna Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Holt who quoted the above words, continued, "Just for a moment think how politics govern your lives and the lives of your loved ones. All around us we are governed by politics, national, provincial and municipal. This is why we should be concerned. So many of the young today do not like to be governed by the establishment, but what would become of the country if there wasn't some sort of control? Next to religion, we today, in this room are dealing with the second most powerful subject in the world, as our governments control our way of living in what we hope is for the betterment of all mankind."

In a straight forward address she told the women present to study, to become involved in all phases of politics.

Mrs. Holt, in her 18th consecutive year on the Peterborough city council, said, "Lip service is fine, but if you only vote as a citizen and do nothing else, that is not being a good citizen. Politics is a full time business, not a part time job every four years."

In closing she urged the women to show off their 'women power', not the women's lib type of women power, but the kind that will work as a team with the constituency association.

Mrs. Holt in her own experience in the realm of civic government found her male colleagues accepted her on an equal basis. She also confided that her husband was a perfect teammate for her dual role as mother, homemaker and alderman. Mr. Holt, the business development officer for Avco Financial Services, Eastern Ontario, accompanied her on her cross Canada stint. They have one son, now grown up, of course, but who was very much an active boy when she first started in her career of community service.

Although she has served on every committee in the Peterborough council her main interest is in the committee she now heads, public relations. In its second term of the ward system, she still has reservations about the advantages of this method of elections. Peterborough is in the process of working out a zoning by-law and like every community in Canada is keenly interested in environmental protection.

SPORTS SCENE

A Fictitious Situation(?)

By ROSS PHELPS

Let's take a completely fictitious situation. There's a guy, who happens to be very interested in baseball. He's not exactly the goody-goody type, but decides that the only way he would get to play in the next season would be to get the ailing franchise on its feet.

It happens to be early in the New Year, but the wheels have started turning. Wheels need grease, but apparently he decides to find if he can even field a team. Indications are, after a lot of tracking is done, it is possible.

The next big question is whether or not he will get support from the media, because this happens to be all-important. If a team doesn't have the support and coverage of the media, then commercial businesses would take a dim view of putting out their hard-earned bucks.

He is assured by the local media that support will be granted, even going as far as obtaining letters signifying this from Optimism at a peak after all the barriers to the team age in the past and a pledge that the team would be given full coverage in the upcoming season.

Then a squabble arises with a local group also involved in baseball. This guy is a hothead, and at this time his sole concern is getting a team together. He's not adverse to stepping on a few toes along the way, international or not.

The squabble dies down, players are obtained and the league is intact with the questionable entry now definite. A coach is obtained and everything looks rosy.

Hard work and help from other people, now on the bandwagon, has brought in enough money to get the team started. There will be financial troubles, no doubt, but by now everything is covered with a rosy haze.

From the local newspaper he gets a portfolio on everything have been lowered if not removed and with the added zest of success nothing seems impossible.

But the other teams in the league have something to say about this and proceed to do so by beating the newly-formed and still struggling team where it hurts, on the field.

Temper flare, and this guy's flares a little higher than the others so he dismisses the coach. He has the power to do this, being voted into the position as manager by the players.

The next night a team meeting is held, in which the players put the question to the guy. Do you want to play or be manager? Since he had started the team for the express purpose of playing there seems to be little choice, and he makes it.

A new manager is voted in, and the coach re-instated. The handwriting is on the wall now, because this guy hasn't exactly been making opposing pitchers in the league quiver with his exploits at the plate.

The new manager, who has decided not to play, does so in one game in which the recently-removed manager isn't put in. There is no love lost between the ex-manager and coach, as is obvious. The ex-manager is cut as the coach and manager decides to pare the team to the best players.

He now has nothing to do with the team he started, with it now in the hands of people who have become noted bandstand jumpers. On and off, now on.

For convenience sake, let's call the guy Terry Craik and the team the Kelowna Mavericks.

Note—to manager Darryl Carate and the players he supposedly is speaking for, and probably is. No threats please; an enemy in this corner is about the last thing that you need. Honest criticism, yes, but threats without the power to do anything seems a little ridiculous.

Donohue Car One To Beat At Mosport's Sunday Race

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — $75,000 in prize money with the Mark Donohue sent his turbo-charged Porsche Audi through Mosport's 2.45-mile circuit in one inute, 14.2 seconds Friday and immediately established this car as the one to beat here Sunday in the first of nine Canada-American Challenge Cup races.

Donohue's Porsche, generating close to 1,000 horsepower, was clocked for the lap at 119.307 miles an hour. The cars expected to give him the most trouble—Team McLaren's Peter Revson and Denis Hulme and Jackie Oliver's UOP Shadow—were almost a full second off the pace setter.

But all four were to get another crack at the track in today's second round of qualifying runs and a shot at the favored pole position for the start of the 200-mile event.

Team McLaren cars have dominated the series which began in 1966, winning 36 of 43 races and staving off any challenges such as Jackie Stewart provided a year ago.

Stewart switched to the McLaren team this year but an ailing stomach has sidelined him and Peter Revson, last year's series winner, returned to partner Hulme who won here a year ago.

At stake in Sunday's event is

Brundage Off Again After Spirit Of Olympics

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, has questioned Bobby Lee Hunter's eligibility for the Olympics, because he doubts that the jailed American boxer has lived according to the spirit of the Games.

Hunter is the National Amateur Athletic Union flyweight champion who won a bronze medal for the United States in the Pan-American Games. But he also is a prisoner at the correctional institution at Manning, S.C., serving an 18-year term for manslaughter.

Brundage Friday said officials of the Summer Olympic Games and the International Amateur Boxing Association are examining the 21-year-old fighter's eligibility in view of his background, which includes killing a man in a knife fight in Charleston, S.C., in 1967.

He said he wasn't sure Hunter could compete in the Games because of the basic regulations that athletes must have lived in the spirit of the Olympic Rules, the Games and the Olympic idea.

Hunter, however, was allowed to fight in the Pan-Am Games, which are conducted under very similar rules. U.S. officials said they were hesitant about Hunter's participation in the Pan-Am competition because of proval for the boxer's inclusion on the American team was granted.

Brundage, who has created storms of controversy because of pursuit of pure amateurism and has faced opposition within the IOC for the zealousness of his pursuit, was backed Friday in his statements by Willi Daume, president of the Munich Organizing Committee, who said he felt Hunter could hardly be called an example for youth.

Hunter is not yet on the Olympic team. He still must qualify in the trials at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, Tex., on July 19-22.

Bobby Lewis, coach of the U.S. Olympic boxers, said he didn't want to comment on Brundage's statement. He said it was possible that the team trials would eliminate Hunter.

"Hunter is one of the better fighters in his weight class," Lewis said. "But he still has to earn his spot on the team. It's hard to say right now what effect his not being on the team would have. There just might be someone better at the trials."

Hunter is accompanied in his boxing travels by Ray Satterfield, a Manning prison guard. In addition to national events in the United States, Hunter and Satterfield have travelled to Cali, Colombia for the Pan-Am Games, and to Moscow and London for international tournaments and pre-Olympic training matches. Money for Satterfield's expenses is provided by private contributions, some of which come from prisoners.

In Columbia, S.C., state corrections officials said they were shocked and upset by reports of Brundage's statements.

"We had no indications there was going to be any problem about Bobby's status," said Sam McCuen, director of public relations for the Department of Corrections. "We understand there might be apprehension that an inmate could participate in such events, but we have the answer and the proper security to handle the situation as Bobby's record in the past has proven."

Three Toronto men were far back in the field and failed to make the halfway cut of 149. Ben Kern had a 77 and 152, Gary Bowerman a 78 and 153, and George Knudson 76 and 156.

"I'm sick," said Trevino, who headed home for El Paso, Tex., to rest for next week's defence of his U.S. Open title. He said he might not get to Pebble Beach, Calif., until Wednesday, leaving him little, if any, time to prepare for golf's most coveted title.

Former U.S. Open champion Gary Player shot a two-under-par 72 in the second round and was grouped with four others at 142, six strokes off the pace. Defending champion Tom Weiskopf carded a 74 and just made the cut at 149.

OPINION POLL

The Secret Ballot

The poll by ads in the newspapers of the Kelowna area during the middle weeks of April resulted in an unanimous decision against the cardboard table-tops system of voting!

These are the semi-public tables that have been used for marking one's ballot (federal and provincial) and which have supplanted the traditional voter-out-of-view compartment.

I communicated this voter-reaction to Mr. Bruce Howard, M.P., Okanagan-Boundary. Now he has replied and says he agrees with it and that he will lobby to get privacy back again. He points out, though, there might not be time to provide a changed provision for the coming election.

One would think a manufacturer could very quickly improvise an economic and efficient, and easily storeable booth from some of the modern materials. Failing this uniformity, then each locality could be authorized to provide privacy in the polling station.

Orioles Score Dual Victory —And That's News This Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Orioles have a winning streak—two in a row—and that's news this year.

"We've had a slow start, true, but we're not over the hill yet," said Paul Blair after his three hits helped the Orioles beat Texas Rangers 7-2 Friday night.

Their second straight triumph lifted the Orioles barely over the .500 mark, a most unlikely position for them considering two world champions and four pennant winners in the last six years.

Their current stature is second place in the American League East, two games behind Detroit Tigers.

"We'll be there when it counts," promised Blair. "We're playing more aggressively. We're running aggressively on the bases now. That's what we've needed all along."

In the other American League games, Cleveland Indians defeated Minnesota Twins 7-1; Boston Red Sox beat California Angels 6-4 in a rain-shortened six-inning game; Kansas City Royals topped New York Yankees 1-0; Oakland Athletics crushed Detroit Tigers 10-5 and Chicago White Sox turned back Milwaukee Brewers 3-2.

CUELLAR WINS THIRD
The Orioles took advantage of four Texas errors and nine walks to give Mike Cuellar only his third victory in eight decisions, a sub-par record for the constant 20-game winner. His last start mirrors the Orioles' slow early pace.

"The warm weather sure helps," said Cuellar, speaking of the hot Texas climate that is as different as night and day compared with Baltimore weather. "It was a cold, cold spring in Baltimore and I couldn't get my arm loose. Tonight, no trouble. I had a good fastball and a pretty good screwball."

Blair's three hits included a double in the fourth inning that provided the eventual winning run. After his first-inning single contributed to a two-run rally, Blair doubled home Don Buford from first base to give the Orioles a 3-1 lead.

The Baltimore centre fielder also tripled to lead off the third inning in his 3-for-5 night, but was left stranded, one of 13 the Orioles left on base.

Kelowna Team Trims Rutland

Kelowna Labatt Teachers exploded for four runs in the third inning and made it last as they took a 5-3 win over Rutland Labatts in Kelowna and District Senior Men's C Softball League action Thursday.

Elgin Parker picked up the win, giving up four hits, while loser Wayne Lee was tagged for seven hits.

Barry Kingsley almost chalked up a home run for Kelowna but the ball hit the top of the fence and bounced back into the field for a double. Roger Hokazono made two outstanding fielding catches to end Rutland rallies, once in the first inning with bases loaded and in the second with two runners on.

East Kelowna wiped out an early deficit to take a 6-2 win over Winfield Thursday.

Gary Rieger pitched a two-hitter for the win with Ron Volk tagged for four hits. It was Rieger's fifth win in seven decisions.

Gerry Runzer scored the winning run in East Kelowna's four-run third inning, stealing home on a low pitch.

BASEBALL ACTION

Pair Of Fast Relievers Just What Doc Ordered

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston's Fred Gladding and Philadelphia's Chris Short supplied fast relief from their respective bullpens Friday night but Don Sutton of Los Angeles could have used infielders to ease the pain.

While Short threw one pitch and got the win in the Phillies' 4-3 triumph over Atlanta Braves and Gladding did even better by tossing two pitches and picking up three outs in the Astros' 4-2 victory over New York Mets.

Sutton suffered through a four-hit, three-error first inning that saw Pittsburgh Pirates pour five runs across the plate and whip the Dodgers 5-1.

Coupled with Cincinnati Reds' 6-3 verdict over Montreal Expos, the Dodgers slipped into second place in the National League West, one-half game behind the Reds. In the East, the Mets had their five-game lead of a week ago chipped to one-half game over the onrushing Pirates.

In the only other National League action, Bob Gibson won his fourth consecutive game as St. Louis Cardinals edged San Diego Padres 3-2. Chicago Cubs and San Francisco Giants were rained out.

Gladding lumbered out of the Houston bullpen with the Astros clinging to a 3-1 lead in the eighth inning and found a Met on every base and none out following two walks and a fielder's choice.

STAUB FALTERS
Gladding threw a sinker and Rusty Staub grounded into a forceout as a run scored. He threw another and Cleon Jones rapped into an inning-ending double play. After Jim Fregosi opened the ninth with a single, Gladding fed a double-play pill to the Astros' fourth of the game—to Ken Boswell.

He also picked up his second major league run batted in—the first came up to the big leagues in 1961—with a squeeze bunt off Mets reliever Tug McGraw in the ninth. Houston tagged Jon Matlack for three runs in the fourth, two on Larry Howard's first home run of the season.

Philadelphia's Short came into a tie game against Atlanta with two on and two out in the eighth. On one pitch he retired Darrell Evans on a grounder and became the winner when Larry Bowa opened the Phils' eighth with a triple and scored on Pete Koegel's single.

Dusty Baker homered for the Braves and Willie Montanez connected for the Phillies, who won their third in a row after dropping 19 of their previous 20 starts.

Sutton took an 8-0 record, a 1.12 earned run average and an 11-game, two-year winning string against the Pirates and even though he was beaten he threw better than his infielders.

PIRATES SCORE 3
Second baseman Bobby Valentine made a bad throw in Rennie Stennett's leadoff grounder and the Pirates cashed in for three runs on singles by Vic Davallio, Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell and Al Oliver before Sutton fanned Richie Hebner for the first out.

The bases were loaded when third baseman Steve Garvey made a wild throw on Manny Sanguillen's grounder but Sutton appeared to escape without further damage when Jackie Hernandez bounced to shortstop Bill Russell.

Russell, however, wasn't about to be outdone by Valentine and Garvey. He stepped on second base, forcing Sanguillen, but then heaved the ball into the first base dugout as two more runs came across.

That was all Pittsburgh's Steve Blass needed as he checked the Dodgers on three hits for his sixth straight victory. The only damaging blow was Frank Robinson's sixth-inning homer, his eighth of the season and 51th of his career, tying him with Mel Ott for 10th place on the all-time list.

Scripture—II Timothy 3:14-17; Psalm 119:9-18.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Having been brought up in the knowledge of God, Timothy was convinced that the way of salvation was faith in Christ — II Timothy 3:14-15.

The scriptures teach, make men conscious of and help them correct their sins, and guide them into the way of salvation. — II Timothy 3:16-17.

The Psalmist turns to God's Word for guidance, for his blessing, praying that he might behold His truth. — Psalm 119:9-14.

Meditation upon the Scriptures leads to understanding of and obedience to His Word. — Psalm 119:15-18.

Golden Text: Psalm 119:10.

Fiery Little Priest Tells Of Peruvian Hell-On-Earth

MONTREAL (CP) — The fiery little priest said he was called away from the confessional in his Peruvian mission one night because "someone died and they wanted me to say a responso, a prayer."

Rev. Enrique Angelo Camacho went into a chest-high packed single-room dwelling, no worse than countless others in Latin American slums. A 22-year-old woman, dead from giving birth to her fifth child, lay amid blood, filth, guinea pigs, dogs, cats, flies and staring kids and neighbors.

"I'm sorry—I don't know what to say," the priest mumbled.

Outside he found words and spoke them to the sky: "If you give me a chance, I'll change this goddam place. If you ever condemn any of these poor people to hell, I won't believe you are merciful."

Father Camacho, delivering a luncheon address Thursday on "the role of the Catholic church in the development and liberation of Latin America," said in an interview earlier that talk about life after death is fine, but "a life after birth" is the vain dream of millions.

His speech to the Canadian Association of Latin American Studies came under the 34th annual meeting of Canada's Learned Societies, in the midst of two-week sessions.

HARD TO FIND WORDS
"The difficulty is to find the words to tell one world how the other world lives," said the 39-year-old Dominican, last of 15 children born to a Portuguese-American couple in Boston.

Father Camacho, who has lived in Peru seven years and acted as adviser to two fishing and agrarian co-operatives, dismissed with an impatient shake of the head the question of priestly celibacy, which troubles the church in some countries. "I call Chimbote, where I live, my wife—my bitch wife," he said.

As for the church's attitude on birth control, he declared: "The workers say their lives are already controlled and now somebody wants to control the wombs of their women. You don't eliminate misery by eliminating the miserable. I believe in planned parenthood, but it has to be a human decision, not something a computer gives out."

Father Camacho, who holds degrees in philosophy and has studied sociology and trade unionism as well as co-operatives, recalled in his prepared speech that Latin American bishops have denounced oppressive conditions and called on the faithful to become actively involved in change.

Groups of priests, religious and laymen, termed everything from "progressives" to "subversives," some of them embracing Marxist analysis, have embarked on social projects. "It is a fact that today in Latin America these small groups are causing many people to think and act," said the priest.

FEW SUSPECTED
"Five years ago, few of us would have suspected that in 1972 in Latin America, priests, religious and laymen would be tortured and assassinated by reactionary government police—as in Brazil and Guatemala—women religious raped—as in Brazil and Argentina—and progressives persecuted, watched, jailed and deported."

A "Theology of liberation" was being evolved, prompting Christians not only to denounce injustices but to support "realistic reforms."

Many positive actions had been taken by the military junta which seized power in Peru in October, 1968, but the country was wracked by an earthquake May 31, 1970, and recently by floods.

"One of the few institutions that gave support to the objectives of the 'Peruvian revolution' was surprisingly the hierarchy of the Catholic church, but even that was calculatedly cautious."

It was a testing time for all institutions in Latin America, and some citizens felt that capitalism as it operates in the Third World "is evil, immoral and inhuman in itself," lacking the checks of more developed countries.

Father Camacho said the challenge to political, economic, social and religious institutions "as the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath—is to renew themselves or fade out of existence."

"I believe this crisis is telling the church that it must come down from the clouds, come out of its ivory tower, give up abstract denunciations of evil. . . . The church must opt for the oppressed and opt against the oppressor as well. . . . In the degree that the church becomes more involved in the world and with people, it will become less involved with the internal problems of its own organization."

He refused, arguing that such a precedent-making incursion on provincial rights would clear the way for a future Parliament to state-supported denominational schools throughout the country if it wished to do so.

Laurier made his point, and his Liberals were swept to power. And there the matter lay for half a century.

AMISH FOLK HARD-HEADED

AUBURN, Ind. (AP) — Amish construction workers in this area of northeastern Indiana, began losing their jobs this spring because they would not wear hard hats.

They said the traditional broad-brimmed black felt hat worn by men of the Old Order Amish sect is an integral part of their religion.

About 400 men were laid off due to a regulation in the 1970 federal Occupational Safety and Health Act, which became effective Jan. 1.

The law requires workers in all types of construction to wear protective hard hats.

In May, spokesmen for the Amish asked Auburn lawyer John Martin Smith to obtain an exemption for them.

GRANT EXEMPTION
Smith reported Thursday that the U.S. labor department has issued the exemption.

"The exemption is for the Old Order only and was issued to allow them religious freedom," he said.

Smith added that the men "were beginning to get back their jobs already."

"They are good workers and many employers would rather have their carpentry work than that of others."

He added that the exemption will not affect workmen's compensation or insurance benefits.

"They will not accept any of these benefits; it's against their religion," Smith said. "They believe in taking care of their own."

P.Q. Separatism 'Threat To Jews'

MONTREAL (CP) — If Quebec separatism is a threat to Canadian Jews, it is because they are of the middle class and not because they are Jewish, Saul Hayes, executive vice-president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, said Tuesday.

The Jewish position in Quebec is not insecure, he said, although "French-Canadians are unhappy with the Jewish community because of the fact that its children have been educated in English schools."

Looking at the possibility of a separate Quebec, he said that if the middle class remains the Jews will stay. If the middle class is eliminated, they will leave.

Mr. Hayes was speaking to the 74th annual meeting of the National Conference of Jewish Communal Service. Most of the delegates are from the United States.

Of some 280,000 Jews in Canada, 130,000 live in Quebec, he said. To date "there has not been the slightest tinge of anti-Semitism" in the Quebec nationalist movement.

PRIEST'S VIEWS

TORONTO (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada should exert influence on the corporations in which it has investments, a priest told the 120th synod of the Toronto Anglican diocese Wednesday.

Rev. Fletcher Stewart of Hastings, Ont., presented a motion suggesting that the church's board of community services develop some guidelines regarding the church's responsibility for social and economic policies of corporations in which it has investments.

The motion was deferred, without debate, to the board of administration and finance, which administers the investments.

After A Lengthy Hearing

In 1959, after lengthy hearings, a provincially-appointed royal commission under Dr. R. O. MacFarlane recommended a measure of direct provincial financial aid under a complex per-pupil formula with strict controls.

Perhaps accepting a fact of political life in Manitoba, none of those appearing before the five-member commission—it included one Roman Catholic—asked for a fully tax-supported separate school system.

Catholic school officials at the time estimated the commission plan would cover half their costs, a great deal better than nothing at all if not a permanent solution.

The MacFarlane commission's report was never implemented.

In 1964 former premier Duff Roblin's Conservatives amended the Public Schools Act to allow private school students to use certain public school facilities, such as libraries, laboratories and gymnasiums, at hours when they were vacant. Later this was extended to free textbooks and rides on public school buses when seats and routes were available.

RESTATED 3 PRINCIPLES
It was breakthrough of sorts, but not in fundamentals. In fact, the Roblin resolution restated three principles prescribed by "constitutional provisions, judicial decisions and political determinations" in Manitoba:

"The separation of church and state as that expression is understood in Manitoba; the dedication of public funds to the support of a single public school system open to all children; the freedom to maintain private schools supported by public funds."

Larry Desjardins, then a St. Boniface Liberal legislator and now an NDP cabinet minister, called the Roblin measures "an insult to Catholics."

Most Rev. (now Cardinal) George B. Flahiff, Archbishop of Winnipeg, commented that insofar as they brought some measure of relief "they are worthy, in certain circumstances, of due consideration."

He added: "They do not, however, offer a final solution to the basic problem," a final solution, or at least a practical measure of financial relief, is what Premier Schreyer has committed himself to achieve.

He originally planned to introduce a private member's bill to the current legislature session calling for direct tax aid instead, declaring that the subject was more complex than he had realized, he last week brought down a resolution calling for a legislative committee to study various forms of possible assistance.

WITHDREW THREAT
He first threatened to resign if the final outcome is negative. Then he withdrew the threat, apologizing that his expression of strong personal feeling might have been considered coercive or intimidating to his party.

It may be some time before the resolution comes to debate. When it does, it will be treated as a private member's resolution with a free vote but on government time.

Opponents of the resolution concede it has a chance of passing, at least as a means of buying time and delaying a final confrontation.

If the committee is established, it will examine such options as direct operating grants, extension of shared services and bringing denominational schools under the public system with augmented religious education.

The latter has been tried with two Roman Catholic schools in Brandon and the experiment generally is rated successful. About 10,000 students attend the 50-odd private schools in Manitoba, ranging from parish schools to private institutions charging substantial fees.

KICKED CAR

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Cut off by another motorist, Michael Cox, 19, dashed off after the other car and when it stopped, hopped out and kicked it, denting a panel. The kick cost him a $40 fine in provincial court. "If everyone went around kicking cars when someone cut them off, there would be a lot of dented cars in town," said Judge W. A. MacDonald.

BARROOM BRAWL

MONTREAL (CP) — Regulars at a tavern here were incensed recently when a young man with a .303-calibre rifle rushed into the tavern and waved it at the barman. The would-be assailant did not even make it to the bar. A half-dozen enraged patrons threw themselves on the man and were still throwing punches when police arrived.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

'Lost' Heart Beat Causes Concern

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have what I call a missing heart beat. I've been told that my heart is missing a beat and stops a little longer than it normally should, so I feel it. All a doctor says is it's nerves. I'm not nervous and it still does it, even two weeks at a time. That keeps me upset and scared.

Is there anything that can be done? Is something wrong? — S. C.

How's that again?—you're "not nervous," but the heart flutter keeps you "upset and scared."

Since you've been told by your doctor that it is from nerves, I am inclined to doubt that you have any serious heart affliction.

These "missed" beats are quite common, but in most cases they aren't really missed or skipped beats. It is what is called an extra systole (beat), followed by a compensatory pause afterward, until the next heart beat comes through. No beat is truly missed; it's just that the order is deranged a bit.

Excess coffee, tea, cola or other caffeine products, and smoking are common causes, as well as nerves.

For your own peace of mind, I would think you should have an electrocardiogram to determine accurately the type of irregularity. However, such irregularity can and often does occur in normal hearts.

I suggest further that you cut down on caffeine in any form, cut down smoking, if you smoke, and see if that, along with stopping being scared, doesn't help.

If not, your doctor can prescribe treatment, but a great deal of the time those simple suggestions do the trick.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What could be the cause and consequence if an old lady, 81 years old, suddenly starts menstruating?—M. A.

Let's call it vaginal bleeding, not menstruation.

Such bleeding can occur if she is on hormone medication.

Vaginally more serious, however, is the possibility of cancer. Immediate examination is required.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain pulmonary tuberculosis. Can it be cured and is it contagious? I know someone who has been diagnosed as having it and I am worried. — C. M. D.

Tuberculosis is caused by a germ. Pulmonary TB means that the germ has attacked the lungs—the commonest place, although the germ can attack other parts of the body.

Yes, it is contagious until a case has been brought under control, but with modern drugs, control is possible in the majority of cases.

Current (and proper) practice is to keep a patient in a hospital or sanatorium until tests show absence of the germs in sputum. After all, the disease is transmitted only by an active case, so a person with arrested TB will not spread the disease.

Periodic checks are essential to make sure that the condition remains inactive.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor found what he described as a "clogged duct" in my breast. He told me not to worry, but to come back in four months.

I am on the birth control pill, and would like to know exactly what a clogged duct is, and whether I should stop taking the pill. — Mrs. J. B.

A clogged duct in the breast is an obstructed milk duct. This may or may not cause discomfort and a lump of a cyst-like nature.

Your physician should advise you whether in your case you should stop taking the pill—you told him you were on the pill, didn't you?

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Sunday, June 11

Monday, June 12

Aries (March 21-April 19): There is not much to do this Sunday, so you may as well show your face and best attire in your community, make the rounds of your friends.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Getting out early lets you in on surprising information. Following a full normal Sunday routine is quite satisfying.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Correspondence, budget adjustments are suitable topics for today. Reach out to make contact with somebody you really care about.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Full participation in whatever social activity is a viable alternative brings you access to useful information. Excursions are in order.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): There is a streak of satisfaction and "luck" running through this pleasant Sunday's social adventure, with its endless round of conversations.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In general, business is better left out of Sunday doings, but this time it seems likely you can do something that is not open to you during the week.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): There is enough to more than keep you busy all day. Select what subjects you will pursue, and get with them.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your greatest interest exists out of your usual company. Where you can't go in person, you can study or communicate.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Forgive, be forgiven in return, but make the first move. Additional understanding brings changing attitudes and simpler demands.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Use your increased energy freely, get something stirring amongst your good friends, perhaps making a journey to renew contact.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What you do now sets future emotional expression. Leave business aside for what you really want, say something important.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Home and daily living circumstances should flow comfortably along as you put things to rights, one thing at a time.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Keep your work going right in spite of distractions. It's better to do a small amount well than to take on too much.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Travel meets delays or goes aside from its original purposes. Be prepared to take up unexpected matters for longer hours than usual.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The more intimate the relationship, the more likely a passing disagreement. Don't let anybody talk you into spending over your budget.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): People resist any unusual or thoughtless move on your part. Mechanical contrivances work erratically, can be hazardous beyond usual.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Confidential matters come unexpected into public notice. Check your information well before moving on it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your impulses tell more of your real nature. Seek a moment of complete privacy in which to gather your thoughts.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): People in official positions seem to be less amenable to suggestion than usual. Your own reactions to annoyances are quick.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Getting in a hurry is very little help, not a substitute for advance planning.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): In financial activities use your own resources rather than the almost certain disagreement of acting on behalf of others or going partners.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pressure for a final decision should be resisted—you soon will see life in slightly different colors in a very short time.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): With inner serenity you can function well despite turmoil. Where interruptions occur, make them into vacation breaks.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Asking too much of yourself sets up a game in which you penalize yourself for being no more than normal. Be realistic.

Rutland Group Presses For Hockey Arena Here

RUTLAND (Staff) — A group of people concerned with hockey in the Rutland-Belgo area is going to ask the Regional District of Central Okanagan to separate construction of hockey from skating facilities when acquiring more facilities.

The regional district has an option on 20 acres of land near Rutland Secondary School, and is thinking of putting an ice surface on four acres. It has not decided whether to build a covered surface or leave it open. Residents will be asked later this year if they approve of the plans. Rutland Park Society has agreed to manage the park. The ice surface would be operated by the regional district.

"We've been waiting about three years for an arena," said Jay Hunter, spokesman for the group. "If the people don't vote in favor, we could wait another year or two."

"We're not against buying more parkland, but we know there is opposition to it, and we feel providing an ice surface is more urgent."

At present Kelowna and District War Memorial Arena is the only covered ice surface in the area. It is getting too much use, so the regional district plans to put surfaces in Rutland and later in other places.

The present plan is to have residents of Rutland pay for the new park and arena, although the electoral area advisory committee for Glenmore-McKinley Landing has suggested that area should co-operate on the arena project. This area is represented by regional board chairman

W. C. Bennett. Hunter said he understood that, if two or more areas went together and the cost was no more than half a mill, no vote would be needed if two-thirds of regional board members agreed.

"The thing, then, is for Mel Marshall and Heinz Koetz (regional district representatives) to ask the board to go ahead with this plan," he added.

The matter will be discussed Monday night at a meeting between members of the park society and the regional board. The meeting will be in the centennial hall.

Mr. Hunter suggested a public meeting would be held if satisfactory results were not obtained. He said 45 people attended a meeting called this week to discuss the matter.

Recreation Commission Meet At Westbank Monday

WESTBANK (Special) — Twenty-four members were on hand to discuss future plans for the Community Hall and Recreation Commission in Westbank on Monday. A Board of Directors was formed and they were: Ole Ekren, Grace Barsley, Granger Evans, Ted Salmon, Wes Robertson, Nadja Comer and Shirley Parsons who is also in charge of Hall bookings. A special advisory council was also to be formed. Granger Evans was elected with the Chairman Steve McCann to be alternative. They will represent this organization at meetings of the District Zoning Board.

An application for an assistance grant from the government for recreation had been granted. This is paid twice a year. Discussion on planning courses of adult education for the fall was carried on. School Boards are in favor of using schools for recreation so long as time does not interfere with school activities. One member said he would like to see basketball and volleyball for men here next fall. The Hall and Recreation meetings continue throughout the summer months and it was decided to invite Syd Gowland to attend the next meeting.

A letter was read inquiring about the feasibility of showing high quality films here during August, a session followed and one member said films attempted here in the spring were poorly attended and the films were not interesting enough. August is a poor month with so many swimming and away on holidays.

A discussion followed on the propane griddles, and it was suggested that they be rented for $5.00 to anyone wanting to use them.

The next item was the Strawberry Social which is to be held in the Community Hall on June 23 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the afternoon. There is to be a fish pond for the children and Mrs. Delia McCann is taking care of the bake table. There will be a table of indoor and outdoor plants and any donations will be made welcome and a help to the day. It is hoped that everyone interested in Recreation and the Community Hall will donate and give a helping hand to make this affair a success.

Swimming registration will take place on the evenings of June 22 and 23. Mrs. Kenneth Comer, who is in charge of the swimming with helpers said she had hired a staff and that swimming instructors and life guards will cost a lot more this year, so the swimming fees will have to be increased. Mrs. Comer's report was approved as read. A work party is needed to fix wharfs and put out barrels. There is to be a work party the last week in June.

It was stated that the Parks Board look after cutting the grass. The beach is in a disgraceful state and will require a lot of work on it to get it ready for the swimming lessons. It was stated that the Health Unit should be informed about the condition of the beach and that there should be policing at the beach to prevent the vandalism. The beach is to be left clean and tidy after the swimming lessons each day and those in charge and parents will be responsible, so be sure and do not litter.

Opening lead—seven of spades.

If you steal in everyday life, there's a good chance you'll get caught and wind up in the jug, but if the larceny occurs at the bridge table, you will sometimes be rewarded instead of punished.

Here is a case in point. West led the seven of spades. South cleverly dropping the ♠ Q on the A-K because he realized that otherwise East would play a third spade for West to ruff. It is hard to blame East for failing to see through this artful manoeuvre. He naturally assumed that West had the missing deuce and therefore shifted to a heart, won by South with the ace.

Given a life, declarer proceeded to take full advantage of a golden opportunity. After playing the A-Q of trumps, he cashed the K-Q of hearts, on which he discarded one of his diamonds. He then drew three more rounds of trumps, at which point this became the position:

New declarer led his last trump, discarding the spade from dummy, and East had no convenient discard. He could not spare the jack of spades, for that would make the deuce a trick, so he discarded a diamond, hoping South would not realize that the king had been left unattended.

But South, aware that East had to have the king for his opening bid, led a diamond, rose with the ace, caught the king, and so brought home a very well played hand.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

Public notice is hereby given to the electors of the South Kelowna Irrigation District that I require the presence of the said electors at the District Office, Gully Road, East Kelowna, on the 26th day of June, 1972, up until the hour of five o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of nominating persons to represent them as Trustees to complete the unexpired term of the late Jack O'Reilly.

The mode of nomination of candidates shall be as follows:
Candidates shall be nominated in writing by two duly qualified electors of the Irrigation District.
The nomination-paper shall be delivered to the Returning Officer at any time between the date of this notice and five o'clock in the afternoon of the day of nomination.
The nomination-paper may be in the form prescribed by the Trustees and shall state the name, residence, and occupation of the person nominated in such manner as to sufficiently identify such candidate.
The nomination-paper shall be subscribed to by the candidate.

In the event of a poll being necessary, such poll will be opened at the District Office, Gully Road, East Kelowna, on the 6th day of July, 1972, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m., of which every person is hereby required to take notice and govern himself accordingly.

A landowner is qualified to vote at the aforesaid poll if:

- (1) He or she is a Canadian citizen of the full age of nineteen years;
- (2) He or she is the owner of land within the District; and
- (3) He or she is entitled to be registered as a voter under the Provincial Elections Act.

A corporation or registered company shall not be entitled to vote unless a written authorization, under the seal of the corporation, naming a person of the full age of nineteen years who is a Canadian citizen to be its agent to vote on behalf of the corporation, is filed with the Returning Officer on or before the day of the election.

Given under my hand at East Kelowna, B.C. this 7th day of June, 1972.

H. E. FOSBERY,
Returning Officer.

Judo Lessons For Girls And Women

RUTLAND (Staff) — A Judo club is being organized for girls and women in the Rutland area. About 12 members of the Kelowna Judo Club decided they wanted to continue practicing during the summer even though other members wanted to quit. So they are meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesdays in the old Catholic church across from Rutland Secondary School.

"We can't understand why more girls and women don't learn self-defence," says Mrs. Heidi Sandana, the instructor. During the Rutland May Days, Mrs. Sandana and her children, also other members of the club, demonstrated their prowess.

There are no age limits. The youngest girls are aged 10-13. "They learn better then," says the instructor.

At present the main club is searching for practice space.

City of Kelowna

Report to the People

FOR THE YEAR 1971

The Amount The City Has To Work With Where It Is Derived And Where It Goes

A month ago, council finished off in less than five minutes a piece of business which had been in the works for months—they gave third and final reading to the city's 1972 budget, totalling $10.5 million.

During those months, while the city's various departments figured out how much money they were going to need, aldermen busied themselves finding the political balance between increasing services and keeping taxes from jumping too much. When they'd finished, a neat set of columns emerged, listing revenues and expenditures for the coming year.

The matter of assessing taxes is rather complicated, but goes something like this: The city lists all its expenses and subtracts its revenue from such things as licences, fines, interest and so on. This leaves the "net deficiency" or the amount the city must raise through taxation.

To distribute taxation fairly, the city evaluates (assesses) the private citizen's land and improvements. Then the total assessment of the city is divided by the amount of money needed to arrive at the "mill rate."

For instance, if the assessment was $10,000 and the city needed $400, then the mill rate would be 40. Simple? Well, not quite that simple. Kelowna taxes 100 per cent of land as-essment, but only 75 per cent of improvements (houses, etc.). School and hospital assessments are also separate.

This year's overall mill rate is 70.77, a rise of 1.17 over 1971, and will raise taxes totalling close to $4 million. Broken down, this means about $2.1 million for school purposes, with a mill rate of 32.29; $176,000 for hospital purposes, with a mill rate of 2.73 and about $2,078,000 for general city purposes, with a mill rate of 35.75.

All told, some $5.85 million is earmarked for general city purposes, with the balance coming from sources other than taxation, including a per capita government grant, fines, licences and sewer service charges.

And this is probably where it will go:

Recreation in the city has been allotted $248,000, as compared to $188,000 actually spent in 1971. Major reason for this increase is the new community recreation complex, while the rest will go towards operating the city's recreation programs.

Public works programs in this year have been budgeted for $412,500, as compared to $405,500 spent last year.

The city's utilities operations cover three areas—water, electricity and the airport. Electric light and power, which has been budgeted for $1.8 million, compared to $1.6 million last year, is actually a money maker and contributes about $460,000 toward tax reduction.

Water services, meanwhile, don't make the city money, but don't cost much either. They are, to use a poor pun, "self-liquidating." A total of $508,000 has been earmarked for this purpose as compared to $490,000 in 1971.

The airport has been budgeted for $645,000, compared to $186,000 last year. The big difference comes with the construction of the new control tower and the proposed taxiway. But the dollar increase won't be felt by the city, as the federal Department of Transport foots the bill for approved major expenditures.

A total of $824,000 has been set aside for police, fire and ambulance costs. Aside from a $240,000 contract with the federal government for RCMP protection, the money goes towards salaries, maintenance, police court, traffic patrol, guards, stenographers and even traffic lights.

Welfare costs in Kelowna should, according to the budget, amount to $1.2 million this year. But through a rather complicated arrangement with the provincial and federal governments $800,000 of that will not be a direct cost to the city. The money also includes operation of the David Lloyd-Jones home for senior citizens.

The city's sanitation and sewer systems have been allotted $767,000, as compared to $593,000 in 1971. The bulk of this sum applies to the latter, which again, is self-liquidating, in that the user pays the cost, resulting in no tax levy.

Some $859,000 has been budgeted for Kelowna's 1972 capital expenditures, compared to $562,000 spent last year. This includes $95,000 for land purchases and $116,000 for buildings.

A good portion of the money will allow for a start on the new fire hall site and the public works yard, which has to be moved from its present site because of the joint city-industry waste treatment plant on Brent's Creek.

The streets construction portion of the capital expenditure sum amounts to $475,000, which will go towards a limited paving program and the landscaping of the new community buildings, as well as maintenance of roads, sidewalks, lanes and street lights. No major roads program is planned, with the only major undertaking likely to be a resurfacing on Pandosy Street.

New machinery and equipment costs have been budgeted from the total figure at about $172,000, compared to $130,000 spent last year.

CITY HALL COSTS

Costs of running Kelowna from City Hall should come to about $465,000, the amount budgeted under general government purposes. The money includes council expenses and those of the city administrator and finance director's offices, as well as City Hall generally.

Under the broad title, community services, $286,000 has been budgeted, compared to $270,000 spent in 1971. The money is used for the maintenance of Kelowna's parks ($158,000), visitor and convention services, street decorating, Regatta and grants to community organizations.

A total of $224,000 has been budgeted to cover the city's debt charges for the next year, the principal and interest on those debts.

A further $358,000 is headed for the reserve fund, which last year got $425,000. Of the reserve total, $94,000 will be put away for underground services, as plans are forming for a storm drainage system within the next few years.

Joint expenditures with the Regional District of Central Okanagan have been budgeted at $80,000, compared to $45,500 last year. The money will go towards such things as administration, planning and the water board.

The regional library has had $70,000 set aside, $61,000 last year.

Finally, no list of anything would be completed without a "miscellaneous" category, which in the case of Kelowna, will be worth an additional $136,000, according to the budget, almost twice as much as last year.

More Promotional Effort Should Be Made In Area

The City of Kelowna is doing very little in the way of industrial promotion and not an efficient job of tourist promotion, according to Ald. Syd Hodge.

"This is probably because many people are critical of 'industry'. However, in my opinion, industries such as Westmills Carpets, White Trucks and the Crown Zellerbach box factory are excellent types of industries to have in a community and provide a basic employment base.

"We should encourage more of this type of industry to come to our community. The city passed her responsibility for industrial development to the region and in my opinion, nothing much is happening.

"The fruit industry of course, is a mainstay in the area and indirectly is a very important item in the economy of the city. However, there are not now large numbers of orchards within the city itself."

As far as tourist promotion is concerned, Ald. Hodge feels, "again, this should be a matter for council policy consideration. It has never been thoroughly debated, but I have a feeling some members of council are against the 'convention business."

"I firmly believe that the tourist dollar is a good, clean industrial dollar that helps the whole economy of the area and I feel small conventions could be very easily accommodated in Kelowna.

"As a matter of fact, we used to be a favorite convention centre in B.C. I don't think we can attempt to compete with a large facility such as the Peach Bowl in Penticton, but we could handle conventions of 300 to 400 people very nicely.

Ald. Hodge maintains there should be more cooperation between the city, chamber of commerce and the Regatta as far as tourist promotion is concerned.

"I feel the city should be taking a bigger interest in the Regatta, its financing and its function as a public relations arm of the city."

... good, clean dollars ...

Some City Hall Space Needed But Must Find Out For What

Space is becoming more of a priority item at Kelowna City Hall and expansion of the building is one of the items bound to get top billing in the city's Five-Year Capital Expenditure Program.

Ald. W. J. C. Kane, however, is opposed to expansion of the building, "until we have determined just what functions the Regional District is prepared to take on.

WILLIAM KANE
... first things first ...

"Negotiations with the regional district on other matters as well," says Ald. Kane, "are in my opinion of high priority."

Ald. Kane, a former director on the regional board, has several times this year voiced other opinions on the regional district concept. Closely allied to those thoughts is his feeling that one of the major issues facing municipalities is a need for constitutional reform.

"I feel it's important that over 80 per cent of the Canadian people live in urban areas. These people are represented by the two levels of government, but I hope that through organizations such as the Union of B.C. Municipalities, municipal councils may become a part of rational and provincial decision-making.

Describing the British North American Act as relevant to a rural Canada, Ald. Kane says, "If Canada can no longer be described as 'Upper' and 'Lower,' surely constitutional reform is in order.

"I feel the citizen living in a western municipality under our present system is at the bottom of the representative totem pole."

NOT ALWAYS POSSIBLE

BUT WAS ACCOMPLISHED

The Aim... 'Holding The Line'

Holding the line on taxation was the end to which Kelowna aldermen spent months of discussion and decision before finally ratifying the most important guide to the development of the city, the 1972 version of the annual budget.

"There was a great effort," says Ald. Syd Hodge, "on the part of the finance committee, which was agreed to by council, to hold the line on the general mill rate."

"In view of the increased assessments, there will be some increase in taxes and I believe most people were happy to have the mill rate held."

"There was no serious debate in council as to allowing the mill rate to rise, although I personally feel the City of Kelowna is going to have to look in the future to more expenditure of tax dollars on roads and sewers and other essential services and it may not be possible in the future to hold the mill rate."

"Keeping costs down and keeping services down is not always the answer to a thriving city."

"Like all budgets," says Ald. Walter Green, "this year's budget could not possibly please everyone. We have the perennial tug-of-war between what we would like to get done in and for the city and rising taxes."

"If we were to maintain the status quo and do nothing more or less—than was done last year, our tax rates would rise because services have to be provided and the small army that works for the city has to be paid salaries and wages, which, like most others, increase inexorably every year."

"It's no secret that municipalities in B.C. are approaching the disaster point as far as costs of municipal government versus sources of tax revenue is concerned. It is my opinion, shared by many others, that the present method of assessing citizens for the purposes of raising monies for municipal government borders on the insane."

Ald. Green feels many citizens of Kelowna, because of this, "are reaching the point where they question seriously their ability to remain domiciled within city boundaries."

Ald. W. J. C. Kane would like to see "more direct accounting to the taxpayer."

"I feel the taxpayer has a right to know where his taxes go—how much of the tax dollar is spent on public works, recreation, property protection and so on."

"I think it is unfortunate that municipalities are forced to collect taxes for education and welfare at their own expense and without an accounting. I feel municipal taxes should be used, as in the past, for funding of community services such as fire and police protection, water and sewer systems."

"This year's budget, I think, provides a more direct answer to the taxpayer than in the past, where one of the problems was reappointment — 'Do we put money into parks to the detriment of paving?'"

"This kind of discussion has never taken place before, it's always been interdepartmental."

Agreeing with the 'hold-the-line' approach, Ald. Gwen Holland says the 1972 budget has reduced money set aside for road and sidewalk construction, "with priority given to construction of storm sewers and water and sanitary sewer upgrading."

"It's the hope of all council members," she says, "that the regional district will accept an appropriate share of the costs of many facilities, such as the health care centre, arena and theatre."

"This would alleviate the strain on city taxpayers and lead to a better understanding of the needs of the whole Central Okanagan area."

Describing the '72 budget as a "reasonable one," Ald. Richard Stewart says, "I don't feel the city is being starved of essential services."

"There was an increase in assessments, but today we're caught in the middle of rising inflation, which makes holding the line on taxes that much more difficult. But I think council this year did a good job of it."

While there has been an increase in the amount budgeted for recreation, Ald. Stewart explained, capital expenditure for roads has been cut back.

"This is to allow the city to evolve studies into roads, sewers and storm drains. And this in turn will let us know exactly what they'll cost so we can do a complete job."

"Kelowna to me has always been a city with blacktop, but with very few curbed sidewalks. This may have been all right 30 years ago, but I think taxpayers in this town want something better."

'Was A Pretty Good Year'

It's been "a pretty good year" for the city, according to Mayor Hilbert Roth.

Mayor Roth, now into his second term as Kelowna's first full-time mayor, cites the continuing success of the city's reorganized administration as one of the brighter aspects of 1971. The new system, which went into effect shortly after he was elected in 1969, has freed aldermen from considerable committee work and split the work load between city administrator Douglas Herbert, finance director Harold Hall, engineering director Nelson Deck and their various staff members.

"With this new 'chain of command', I feel we've gotten rid of what was really an unmanageable octopus. Most of council's committees are now done away with, which has to be a good thing."

"This town is too large now... in effect we're trying to run it like a corporation. We have a $10 million budget this year — that's a big business and we have to run it like a big business."

"Council, you might say, is trying to achieve the status of a board of directors, whose main job it is to establish both short and long term policy and planning."

Mayor Roth feels one of the most important steps taken by council during the past year was entering into a planning agreement with the Regional District of Central Okanagan.

"I think the approach taken by council to regional planning shows this is a far-sighted council interested in long-range planning for the regional district, including the City of Kelowna — and I'm sure we'll get it."

"Naturally there will be complaints — it's a big job for one man and a small staff. But we didn't enter into an agreement to save money — the regional district is empowered to hire another planner and more staff if necessary."

The whole concept of regionalism is a topic which has generated heat during recent months, and Mayor Roth has had no qualms about making his feelings known.

Take industrial development in the community as an example.

"For a long time areas outside the city benefited from Kelowna's promotion, until now the biggest percentage of industry is located outside the city."

REGIONAL TASK
"So we took the position that industrial promotion is really a regional responsibility. We talked to regional district and they agreed, and will soon be coming out with a regional industrial brochure."

"The city has been very receptive to industry, but also very selective in that the only industries which are admissible are those which are non-polluting. We're striving to attract industry which will give us a strong tax base, but we're also very concerned about protecting the environment of this community and the whole valley, for that matter."

... complaints natural

"One of the problems we face as far as industrial promotion is concerned is that land prices in Kelowna are higher than in Vernon or Penticton. We found recently that land in our industrial park was much higher than comparable land in either of those cities."

Closely related to this is the matter of tourist promotion.

"Naturally, I recognize that tourism is a very important industry. In the past the chamber of commerce received a grant-in-aid for tourist promotion and every year they were required to come back to council with hat in hand to ask for another grant."

"We've since entered into a business arrangement with the Chamber of Commerce, where we give them a sum of money to look after promotion and enquiries and the whole operation is reviewed annually."

"I think this is the best way to handle it and despite the fact that we have cut costs, the number of tourists has increased and will continue to increase."

Among the disappointments encountered by Mayor Roth and council as a whole last year was the failure of the boundary extension vote, which would have included the Orchard Park shopping centre within city limits.

But, says the mayor, a larger boundary extension and a long-term expansion program are in the works and a committee is to meet soon with the regional district in an effort to gain its co-operation and support.

"But in keeping with our policy, the only way we'll extend our boundaries is if there is no cost to present taxpayers. The same formula as before will apply, where residents petition the city to come in and agree to buy into existing facilities."

The mayor, along with the rest of council, is in favor of the five-year capital expenditure program required by the provincial department of Municipal Affairs.

"Every year, council spends hours and hours cutting the budget to hold down taxes. The five-year capital budget is an excellent way of finding out what our major requirements are going to be and listing the priorities."

AUDITORS' REPORT

To the Mayor and Aldermen of
The City of Kelowna

We have examined the books and records of the City of Kelowna for the year ended December 31, 1971 and have received all the information and explanations we have required. Our examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion the accompanying balance sheets and statements of revenue and expenditure and surplus are properly drawn up in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the affairs of the City as at December 31, 1971 and of the results of its transactions for the year then ended, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us and as shown by the books of the City.

CIVIC PROJECTS

Wondering where your tax dollars go? Well, there will be something for just about everybody when the three buildings pictured at left are completed. At top is the community recreation complex off Spall Road, complete with swimming pool, towards which a major portion of the $248,000 allotted in the 1972 city budget will go. At centre is the retired citizens activity centre, which will provide much-needed space for the multitude of events staged by area seniors. The lower photo shows the impressive pavilion near the Aquatic Pool in City Park, which will offer varied facilities in the most widely-used recreational spot in Kelowna.

Capital Budget Program Lists Major Priorities

Several years ago, the provincial department of Municipal Affairs came up with a request to municipalities in B.C. that each year they provide something known as a Five-Year Capital Expenditure Program.

It's intended to be a comprehensive plan of everything to be done in the current year as well as the next four. While the city's annual operating budget allows for things to be financed on a yearly basis, from revenue and tax sources, the five-year budget outlines objectives to be financed from any source, including reserves, debentures and cost-sharing programs with senior governments.

Kelowna city council is unanimous in its support of the idea, even though they naturally don't agree on all priorities. Here are their comments:

BEST THING

"I think it's one of the best things the city has undertaken in a long time," says Ald. Richard Stewart. "There are some refinements that can be made in the application of the budget so the individual taxpayer can see what is planned for the future of his community."

"I don't entirely agree with everything that is part of the present program, but future councils will establish priorities within it and at such times, aldermen can comment on what they feel are essential programs to embark on."

"Capital budgets must be revised annually as these priorities change but they are essential so that staffs and councils have a guide as to what demands will be made on the tax dollar in the future."

As Ald. Gwen Holland explains, a new fire hall is on top of the list of priorities. Land will be purchased this year, with construction of the fire hall planned for 1973.

Other priority items include storm drainage and sewer programs, additions to the police administration building, and an airport runway extension, funded through the Department of Transport.

Also in the works are Pandosy Street reconstruction, relocation of city work yards, library expansion, and new boat launching facilities.

EXCELLENT IDEA

The five-year capital budget, says Ald. Syd Hodge, "is an excellent idea and has been practised in Kelowna several years prior to its introduction by the provincial government."

"It's a changing thing and council at all times is revising it to try and lay out a sensible and constructive five-year program."

"In the last year our priorities have been extremely high on recreation and social facilities, which everyone seemed to want, but I feel we must now think of other facilities as well and our roads, sewers and fire hall are going to require more attention in the next few years."

"An excellent idea," was also the way Ald. W. J. C. Kane described the five-year program and for much the same reasons, but he adds, "it touches on one of the weaknesses of many municipalities — long - range planning."

According to Ald. Walter Green, the provision of a five-year expenditure program by city finance director Harold Hall, city administrator Doug Herbert and their senior associates, "is an example of good, sound common sense."

"A five-year plan is a blueprint for the immediate future. It establishes guidelines for the controlled, intelligent use of municipal funds."

"It's not an iron-clad document and can be revised from time to time as circumstances require."

Belief In Civic Government Seen By 'Rookie' Alderman

Ald. Walter Green, the "rookie" on city council (he finishes his first term next December) feels municipal government is "an effective level of administration" and has words of praise for his fellow aldermen.

"In theory, and most often in practice, it determines the well-ordered growth of a given designated area and provides for the basic services related to this growth.

"Costs to the average taxpayer living in this area are predictably higher than for those people living in 'rural' or unincorporated areas. I believe, in this period of almost phenomenal growth rates, that a geographic unit, be it Rutland or Lakeview Heights or Okanagan Mission, or wherever, should, on reaching a certain minimal population density, be required by the Department of Municipal Affairs, to either be incorporated or annexed by a neighboring municipality.

This, he feels, would bring more "orderly development" of the regional district.

"I'm distressed by the wranglings and fragmentations that seem to be part of regional governments in many parts of B.C. and I lay the blame squarely at the feet of the provincial government."

'FUZZY'
"The original notion of regional districts in B.C. was fuzzy in concept," says Ald. Green, "and equally fuzzy in direction and development." He feels the theory is good, but that "too much disparity exists in B.C. in the geography of the concept.

"We have half a dozen political stews or categories — each with its own fundamental problems. Strong and clean direction is needed from Victoria."

As for the present city ad-

WALTER GREEN
... predictably expensive

ministration, Ald. Green says, "The municipal council on which I sit is one which continually demands my respect. I respect the mayor, not only his high office, but the man himself and also my colleagues around the table."

The kind of person he feels should serve on council, Ald. Green describes as "able-bodied (male or female) with a reasonable level of intelligence, willing to sit down and reason together, capable of making the best decisions in the interests of all the citizens of Kelowna and ready to devote at least 25 hours per week to the affairs of this city."

"I do not think it matters whether you are a businessman, a professional person, a working man or a housewife—any council that is representative of a cross-section of the community would be a good one."

Need Regional Involvement

Considerable groundwork remains to be done, but increased regional involvement is the direction in which recreation in Kelowna and district is headed, according to Ald. Gwen Holland.

A member of the committee working with the regional district to evolve a more comprehensive recreational concept for the area, Ald. Holland says, "we've got to do this because the city taxpayer can't be expected to carry the load for facilities which are being used by the whole region."

Recent discussions, she feels, have progressed further than any during the past four years, and "I think we're coming closer to some form of cost-sharing agreement for recreation on a regional level — we can no longer confine it to the city."

Ald. Holland agrees the 'two-way street' approach is the answer. "I'm sure people in the regional district — and the city is part of the regional district — are quite willing to pay a little more to have their children participate."

As far as Kelowna's present recreation picture is concerned, Ald. Holland says, "The three new community building projects represented a tremendous boost and because there are increased costs — for which funds must be provided — other requirements in recreation must be cut down."

Ald. Holland cites air conditioning in the community theatre (costing $26,000), washroom facilities in neighborhood parks and improvements to the badminton hall as examples.

Like many other people, she would like to see the swimming pool in the new community centre covered, enabling the swim club to train year-round for competition against places like Vernon and Kamloops, which have indoor facilities.

"Regarding the purchase of park land," Ald. Holland maintains, "I feel such land should be purchased as it becomes available. This is a legacy for this and future generations."

"For example, council recently approved the purchase of a piece of land adjacent to Kinsmen Park rather than the entire lot. My feeling is that the land is available now a market value and in all probability will be lost forever as natural parkland."

GWEN HOLLAND
... need public land

Giant Step In Removal Of Pollution

... users should pay

The $600,000 industrial waste treatment plant planned for the city's north end has been hailed as quite an achievement in the battle against pollution, in that it's a joint effort between the city and the industries involved.

As Ald. Richard Stewart explains, the plant is the same type as the city facility located in the south end of Kelowna and will utilize the same 'activated sludge' method of treatment.

"The city had two choices when it decided to take on industrial waste. It could have expanded its existing plant or built a separate one.

"The latter course was followed because of the distance involved, which would have resulted in substantially higher capital costs to achieve the same results.

"The finance formula arrived at is probably unique in that industry is required to pay 80 per cent of the capital cost and all operating costs of the new plant. This formula is the result of our policy that utilities should pay their own way — in other words, 'users pay'."

"The city has an agreement with the industries involved (Sun-Rype Products and Calona Wines) that will see us borrow the funds and the industries pay us back."
